WEATHER INDICATIONS.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., Oct. 24, 1892.

The area of high barometric pressure covers the entire country west of the Atlantic coast, being highest over the Rocky Mountain region.

In all other sections the weather has continued fair. Rains are probable on the Atlantic coast to-day, and generally fair weather in all other sections.

The temperature has fallen over the entire country as far east as New York, and as far south as Tennessee. It will rise slowly in all sections during the next 48 hours.

Local forecast for Toledo and vicinity—On Monday, fair, continued cool. On Tuesday, fair, slight change in temperature.

Frightful Wreck on the Reading Road.

Caused by the Carelessness of an Engineer.

He Disobeyed the Orders Given to Him.

The Pile of Debris is Now in Flames.

Fire Department and Physicians Sent to the Scene of the Disaster to Render Assistance.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—It is now stated that the Shamokin express on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, due here at 9:30 a. m., ran into an engine near the Manayunk tunnel.

About 15 people are said to have been killed, and some 20 or more injured.

The accident was caused by the engineer of locomotive No. 538, northbound, and alone, disobeying orders.

The southbound track being occupied the engineer was ordered to wait at Pencoyd until the southbound express from Shamokin, due at Broad and Callowhill street, Philadelphia, at 9:30 a. m., had passed.

Disregarding this he moved northward, and just north of Manayunk tunnel met the express.

A fearful crash followed.

At 11:50 o'clock President McLeod received a message that the number of killed is now placed at 10, and the injured at 15.

The wreck is on fire and the fire department of Manayunk is playing upon it. All of the dead and injured have been removed from the scene. Both tracks are blocked and all trains are being dispatched via the Germantown and Norristown branch.

BEAUTIFUL NAPOLEON

Is Rapidly Pushing Itself to the Front.

Henry County Is Proud of the Capital.

Many Improvements Made But the March of Progress Fairly Begun.

Napoleon, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Henry county is fast lifting her head up to and above many of her neighboring and more favored counties in regard to improvements, both of county property in the county seat and in the various townships.

Originally this bailiwick was a mar, a veritable wen on the face of the northwestern part of the state. It was a vast marsh, justly called the "Black Swamp," and dreaded and avoided by emigrants, and it long remained a section that "was not down on the map," so to speak.

But little by little hardy and thrifty people gained a foothold, and that once secured the prosperity has been marvelous. Two elements of improvement have brought about such desirable results, viz.: drainage and good roads. The two have been making gigantic strides for many years, nor in this latter day, when it would seem that the systems were almost perfect, is the good work permitted to lag, as the ditch records in the auditor's office will show. The last year has seen scores of ditches completed, while as many more are in course of construction.

Napoleon township, always in the lead, has inaugurated a system of gravel roads that now spans the township to all the cardinal points and draws trade from other counties. Such enterprise is contageous, and now Flatrock, the first township southerly, is doing her duty. Last Saturday the commissioners sold to Seasongood & Mayer, of Cincinnati, $19,500 worth of bonds for the expense of continuing the Kalida pike on through to Holgate, a distance of six miles, which will connect the two chief towns of the county with 10 miles of as fine a highway as exists in the state. The bonds were sold at 2.18 per cent. premium. Already nearly two miles of this road have been completed, and should the fair weather continue the whole will be completed before winter sets in.

Other townships will vote on propositions to stone or gravel their roads in the spring, and before many years our system of pikes will be a model one.

Emblem of Democracy.

At Hamler Saturday afternoon a vast assembly of local democrats collected and erected heavenwards a gigantic symbol of pure and healthy democracy in the shape of the tallest hickory that could be secured in that section. Enthusiasm was not lacking, and when the mammoth king of the forest reared his large proportions perpendicular to the world, a great shout of commendation went up that would have done Grover's heart good to hear.

In the evening the Hons. D. D. Donovan, our candidate for congress, and J. F. Myers, Henry county's representative in the legislature, laid before the people the issues of the day from a democratic standpoint in lucid and logical addresses. Both gentlemen are orators and statesmen who are a credit to any representative assembly to which they may be elected. Their version of the tariff was convincing, and without doubt good missionary work was accomplished.

Driven out — all impurities of the blood, no matter of what name or nature, or from what cause arising, by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Clear your skin with it. Every disfigurement, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, will disappear. It invigorates the liver, cleanses, purifies, and enriches the blood as nothing else can, and promotes all the bodily functions. For all the many and varied forms of Scrofula, and for the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, Eczema, Boils, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, nothing can equal it as a remedy.

The sarsaparillas claim to do good in March, April, and May. The "Discovery" does more than that. At all seasons and in all cases, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or you have your money back.

Nothing else offered by the dealer, though it's probably better for him, can be "just as good" for you.

Gen. Daniel E. Sickles Talks to the World.

Harrison As the Leader of a Battalion of Office-Holders a Thing the General Abhors.

New York, Oct. 24.—At a largely attended mass meeting of the democratic clubs in Harlem, Gen. Daniel E. Sickles discussed national issues and explained his much-talked-about speech at the G. A. R. encampment at Washington.

"I was talking to a thousand comrades who had been, that day, disappointed in their expectations at being received at the white house by the president. The president had arranged for a reception to them, but was obliged to forego it on account of Mrs. Harrison's serious illness. This is what I said:

'Comrades, you expected to be received by the head of the nation, who is your comrade, but he is constrained by a solemn duty to-day. He has not forgotten you, and you must not forget him. He is a brave soldier. I saw him lead his battalion at Resaca.'

"That is what I said. I thought it to be manly, and only a tribute one soldier might properly pay to another. Harrison at Washington leading a battalion of office-holders in an effort to perpetuate himself is a thing I abhor."

WON BY ANDY BOWEN.

Eighteen Rounds of Terrific Fighting.

The Ex-Light Weight Champion of the World Coming to the Front Again.

Plaquemine, La., Oct. 24.—Andy Bowen, ex-lightweight champion of the world, and John S. Eckert, of Streator, Ill., fought a desperate battle here last night for a purse of $1,000. The honors were evenly divided in the first and second round, but in the third, Bowen adopted his rushing tactics and the third, fourth and fifth ended in his favor. Eckert rallied in the sixth and gave Bowen some hard jabs on the chin.

Up to the twelfth round both men fought like tigers, neither having any particular advantage. Bowen forced the fighting in the thirteenth round and rained blows on the Streater boy's neck at close quarters. In the fourteenth Eckert regained his wind and punched his antagonist hard in the jaw.

When time was called in the eighteenth round Bowen came up fresh as a daisy. He dealt Eckert a terrific blow on the chin, which dazed him. Bowen then started in to finish his man and knocked the Streator lad down three times in succession. Eckert's seconds then threw up the sponge. Fouls were cried several times by the seconds of both sides, but they were not allowed.

UNDER THE CAR WHEELS

Fatal Accident on the Chicago and Eastern.

One Person Killed and a Large Number Badly Injured.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—The Danville express on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad was wrecked at Forty-ninth and Wallace streets last evening at 11:30. Eleven persons were injured and one killed instantly. The list of killed and injured is as follows:

Unknown woman, crushed under the cars.

Joseph S. Johnson, Chicago Heights, both legs crushed off at knees; will probably die.

Mrs. J. J. Graham, Bancroft, Ia., head injured, serious.

Mrs. J. T. Taylor, 5650 Emerald avenue, head and arms injured.

William Morris, Chicago Heights, right arm and hand crushed.

C. W. Thompson, 6423 Wright street, right arm crushed.

Julia Erinser, Hoopston, Ill., arms and breast injured, not serious.

W. J. White, Rockville, Ill., head injured, not serious.

Lewis Harlett, Terre Haute, Ind., face cut and arms crushed; not serious.

Merdin McDonald, 5,000 Loomis street, right leg badly crushed.

Gus Emerson, 601 Sixty-first street, right arm broken.

W. H. Hallett, conductor of train, right leg slightly injured.

The woman who was killed has been identified as Mrs. Anna McDonald, of this city.

FOREIGN SENSATION.

London, Oct. 24.—The Paris correspondent of the Chronicle says that a sensation has been caused by the article that Lord Rosebery has intimated that England will not be a party to any hostilities between the dreibund and France.

BUFFALO BILL.

New York, Oct. 24.—Among the passengers by the Servia this morning from Liverpool are Col. W. F. Cody and Jenny Joyce.

A FORCE BILL

Is Needed by Republicans in New York.

A Shameful State of Affairs Has Been Discovered.

Seven Hundred Negroes Colonized by Republicans,

Who Hope to Vote Them Like Sheep for Harrison.

Dick Morton Has Been Run Down in His Attempt to Debauch the Will of the People at the Polls.

New York, Oct. 24.—It is stated that Superintendent Byrnes has unearthed a nest of illegally registered voters in the Eighth assembly district of this city.

They consist of about 700 negroes, who, it is said, have been brought here from Philadelphia by the republicans with a view to registering and voting from the lodging houses in that district.

Under the orders of the superintendent the negroes have been watched night and day and their every movement is known.

It is learned that every man in the colony has had his expenses paid for thirty days.

It was stated at police headquarters to-day that 1,000 warrants will be issued on election day for persons who have no legal right to vote in this city.

When questioned by the reporter of the United Press with regard to the colonization of negroes, Superintendent Byrnes said that every precaution had been taken to prevent illegal voting.

POLITICAL SENSATION

Placed at the Door of Gov. Buchanan.

It Is Charged That Republican Money Induced Him to Be a Candidate.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 24.—A political sensation which will add, if possible, to the odium in which Gov. John H. Buchanan is held by the people of Tennessee, was caused by the publication in yesterday morning's Times of a seemingly well proved charge that Buchanan's candidacy for governor against the regular democratic nominee was secured by the payment in cash of $15,000 by the republican national committee.

The Times backs its story by considerable testimony. When Gov. Buchanan was defeated for renomination by the regular democratic convention he seemed at first to take his defeat with fortitude, ascribing it to his half-hearted policy in dealing with the striking miners.

Suddenly he changed front and announced himself an independent candidate. This course, the Times claims, was influenced by the cash payment of the republican national committee referred to.

HEAVY STORM.

Many Boats Driven on the Shores.

The Steamer Soteri From Honduras, Reports Exceedingly Heavy Weather.

New Orleans, Oct. 24.—The steamer Soteri, from Honduras, arrived last evening. It reports that a heavy gale struck the coast of Spanish Honduras October 10, which finally resulted in a hurricane on the night of October 12, doing great damage all along the coast, wrecking several houses at Utilia and driving ashore sloops, lighters and other small craft.

The Soteri rode out the gale at Ceiba, sustaining no damage. At Ruatan the schooner Helena Adams, Capt. Barlotta, of Mobile, with a cargo of cocoanuts, was sunk in the harbor, its crew reaching shore in safety.

The three-masted schooner Han Noran, of New York, schooners Goalin, Eris and Royalist, of Ruatan, and the steamship Wanderer of New Orleans, dragged their anchors and went ashore. The Wanderer, after discharging cocoanuts and coal, floated without damage.

The Johnsville church and a number of houses were also blown down at Ruatan without loss of life as far as could be learned. Large quantities of fruit have been destroyed, and many banana plantations ruined. This is said to have been the most severe hurricane ever experienced on that coast. The wind came out from the northwest and backed to southwest.

The amount of damage done and the loss of life will no doubt be large, but will not be known for some time yet. The schooner Honduras, from Belize, Honduras, for Utilla, with 18 passengers, had its mainmast carried away and cut away its foremast during the storm. It then made a drag of the debris, and after drifting about for two days in a helpless condition, without food or water for the passengers and crew, was picked up by a sloop about fifteen miles north of Ruatan and towed to Utilla.

GERMAN MILITARY BILL.

Berlin, Oct. 24.—The new military bill does not go as far as was expected in adding to the effective strength of the army. It fixes the effective strength, from Oct. 1, 1893, to March 31, 1899, at 711 battalions of infantry, 4477 squadrons of cavalry, 494 field batteries of artillery unmounted and 37 batteries mounted, seven battalions of railway troops and for train service 21 battalions, making a total of 492,098. The bill makes the two years' service system general.

BIG BLAZE.

London, Oct. 24.—A Hamburg dispatch to the Standard estimates that the loss by the fire in the Kleine Grasbrook quarter on Saturday last amounts to 2,000,000 marks. The policies on the warehouse and goods were mostly issued by British insurance companies.

WOODS ON FIRE.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 24.—The damage already done by the great fire that is sweeping through the woodlands of Atlantic county will amount to nearly $100,000. The flames are visible for many miles and the air is filled with smoke.

STILL TURBULENT.

Warlike Dispatches Come from Buenos Ayres.

New York, Oct. 24.—A cable to the Herald from Valparaiso says that news comes from Buenos Ayres that Gov. Rojas is still in prison and the revolutionists practically in control of the state.

In the national cabinet there was a division as to the course to pursue. The majority favored federal intervention, and Finance Minister Romero resigned, and the executive asked power from the national congress to intervene. It was granted.

Congress will probably appoint a committee to inquire into the affairs in the province, which are in a grave and unsettled condition.

The war office says it is ignorant of the authorship of the order calling out the troops, but it is known it emanated from Chief of Staff Emilio Mitre.

THE BLAINES.

New York, Oct. 24.—James G. Blaine, Mrs. Blaine and Miss Alice Blaine left for Washington on the 11:30 train this morning on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The party accompanied by Mrs. Damrosch, Mr. Blaine's daughter, left the Fifth Avenue hotel in a carriage shortly after 11 o'clock and were driven to the foot of Liberty street, where the ferry boat was taken to Jersey City. Mrs. Damrosch only saw her parents and sister to the train.

ESCAPED FROM PRISON.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Oct. 24.—Two desperate convicts escaped yesterday from the southern prison. They were James Daily, a "seven-year murderer," and Wm. McCarthy, a "four-year" prisoner. During the day the men managed to elude the guards and were first missed at roll call last evening. A close watch is being kept and the prison authorities think the prisoners will be captured near the prison.

MRS HARRISON.

The Good Lady Is Slowly Passing Away.

She Can Hardly Survive Another Day,

And the Next Dispatch May Even Bring the Announcement of Her Death.

Washington, Oct. 24.—At 11 o'clock Mrs. Harrison was barely alive.

She had passed the stage where nourishment could be administered, having received the last, a little liquid stimulant at about midnight. Since then the nurse and physician have been able to do nothing more than to moisten the lips with stimulant.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, Dr. Gardner reached the house and remained at the bedside of the patient until 9:30. As he left he stated that it seemed to him impossible that Mrs. Harrison should survive the day, and this statement was communicated to the members of the cabinet, who are now on their way to Washington—Messrs. J. W. Foster, Charles Foster and Rusk.

The first named is in Indianapolis, the second in Chicago, and the third in Wisconsin. The family were gathered in the room adjoining the sick chamber, and when informed that Mrs. Harrison's condition showed no unexpected change, repaired to the dining-room. After breakfast, the president returned to the bedside of his wife, from which he has been absent the last few day only long enough to obtain absolutely needed rest and the others went to the piazza at the south side of the house for a breath of fresh air.

When thus refreshed the sad vigil which they have so long maintained was resumed. During the morning there were rather more than the usual number of callers, who left their cards merely after receiving the answers to their inquiries. Among them were many of the diplomatic corps, who returned to Washington from Chicago last night.

The visit by Baron Fava, Italian minister, last Tuesday, to inquire of Mrs. Harrison's condition, in obedience to instruction from the Italian minister of foreign affairs, has already been noticed, but it transpires that a week ago last Saturday Hon. Mr. Herbert, British charge d'affaires, presented the inquiries of her majesty Queen Victoria, to which formal response was made last Monday through the state department.

At 1 o'clock Dr. Gardner paid a third visit to the white house, having previously been there at 11. He remained but a few minutes, and as he left gave to a crowd of newspaper men the present condition of Mrs. Harrison: "She is gradually growing weaker; sloping away."

"What are the probabilities?"

"She is likely to pass away at any moment, and she may live five or six hours yet."

"Is she conscious?"

"Occasionally. She passes most of the time in heavy sleep, but arouses once in a while, when we moisten her lips with a stimulant."

"Does she come out of the sleep naturally, or is it the result of efforts by those about?"

"She arouses naturally, and is conscious. There is no coma in her condition. In cases of this kind, the patient generally dies of asthma, diminution of the vital forces."

Dr. Gardner calls at the white house at no regular intervals, but as often as the demands of other patients bring him within convenient distance, and when he starts out on his regular round of calls.

CRAZY MAN IN CHURCH

He Takes Possession of the Pulpit,

And Runs Affairs to Suit Himself.

He Was Armed and Had Brought Along a Week's Supply of Provisions.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 24.—Charles Mason Emmons, a member of the Oliver Congregational church of this city, became suddenly insane yesterday morning and obtaining an entrance to the church, took possession of the pulpit and held it against the whole police force until 4 o'clock.

Emmons had asked the pastor to deliver a sermon on "Truth," which he (Emmons) had prepared, and the minister declined to do so and he determined to preach it himself. He had drawn an imaginary dead line around the pulpit and with the aid of two drawn revolvers kept the officers at bay until yesterday afternoon when he fell asleep and was captured after a struggle.

He fired several shots at the officers during the day, but his aim was wild and none of them took effect.

The pulpit was stocked with provisions to last a week. A large crowd collected in front of the church while efforts were being made to dislodge the maniac and the greatest excitement prevailed for a time.

LOYAL OTTAWA

Will Pile Up the Usual Democratic Majority.

Enthusiastic Meeting at Pt. Clinton Saturday.

Frank E. Wright and Barton Smith Make Rattling Addresses to an Immense Audience.

Port Clinton, Oct. 24.—(Special)—Ottawa county democrats held a rally and mass meeting here Saturday night and it proved one of the largest, most attentive and enthusiastic gatherings held in this county seat.

The meeting was announced and advertised but a short time ahead, but the people of that good old county don't await special invitations—but come out on call. Hence, not only was there a good attendance, but every detail of the meeting was a success.

Messrs. Frank E. Wright and Barton Smith, of Toledo, were the speakers, and were accompanied by several democratic friends to help inspire the occasion.

At Port Clinton the speakers were welcomed by a delegation, headed by Committeeman Lindeman, and the fine brass band that the city is so proud of.

The party proceeded in carriages to the hall at once, where, after several fine airs from the band, the meeting opened.

Mr. C. I. York, of Port Clinton, presided as chairman, and Mr. D. Lindeman, as secretary.

The introductory remarks of Chairman York were pleasant and happy and very fitting to the occasion, and he congratulated the democracy of Ottawa county on the splendid showing it was prepared to make on the 8th day of November.

Mr. F. E. Wright was the first speaker introduced.

Mr. Wright thanked the audience for the pleasure and honor of being invited to address the democrats and citizens of Ottawa county. It was certainly a pleasure for a democrat to be called to the only democratic county in the congressional district to speak—a county known in the parlance of democratic politics as "reliable and rock-ribbed," and so democratic as to be well termed a "Mecca" at whose shrine all democrats can worship and pay tribute.

The speaker drew immense applause from the audience by the announcement that the verified reports from New York showing the great increase in registration in democratic districts placed the election of the presidential ticket beyond question.

The democratic party of the nation was, to-day, more grandly united than ever before, and was quite as magnificently organized as when it followed that greatest of leaders and organizers—Samuel J. Tilden—in his victorious campaign. (Cheers.)

The issues made between the two great parties were clear and unclouded and of the most important character, as affecting the rights and liberties of all American citizens.

The question of the tariff was first discussed by the speaker and the McKinley bill and its idolators were handled without gloves.

Mr. Wright presented facts and details, which supported his argument upon this issue and clearly showed that the governing class of the republican party which made and controlled its policy and inspired the enactment of the laws relating to tariff was a class consisting of men who were engaged in the iron industries and other monopolies and who had been made rich by such laws. That the hard earned means of the many were levied upon and, instead of being used solely for the necessities of the government, were turned over to this class who enjoy the stolen wealth and preach loudly for protection.

It was shown that this class contributed vast sums of money to elect Harrison in the last campaign—hundred of thousands of dollars, and that it treats tariff legislation as laws it has purchased by campaign contributions. This class openly proclaims "The McKinley bill is ours; we bought it and paid for it."

The remarks of the speaker were clearly announcated and were roundly applauded when the honesty, justness and right of the position of the democratic party was substantiated by the confessions of Wayne McVeagh, Judge Gresham, and other former leaders of the republican party.

Wayne McVeagh, during the administration of President Garfield, had been called to the head of the legal department of the government of the United States.

On account of his great learning, probity of character and legal ability he was chosen from the vast hosts of the educated, elevated men of the party to be the "legal brains" of Garfield's administration.

Now he has left the party and in his letter exposes the wrongs of the republican party and warmly espouses the rightful cause of democracy.

Judge Gresham's position was creditable and a high tribute to the honesty and high and independent character of the distinguished jurist.

Mr. Wright also referred to the force bill, and, reading from the democratic platform, clearly proved that on this vital question the party of Jefferson and Cleveland was on the side of liberty and the people.

The reference to the ability and masterly qualities of our leaders, Cleveland and Stevenson, was greeted with much applause; and, when the speaker, in eloquent terms, referred to the congressional contest in this district and paid a deserved compliment to his friend and fellow-democrat, Byron F. Ritchie, who never was a "turn-coat," but always true, reliable and consistent, the rafters of the hall were shaken with the cheers which followed.

Chairman York then introduced Mr. Barton Smith, who next addressed the audience.

Mr. Smith was at his best, and his remarks, which were quite extended, received earnest attention from the audience.

The iniquity of the McKinley bill was illustrated by local application of a very forcible character and the audience was brought close to the question so as to clearly see and understand the wrong which has been committed and the burden afflicted upon the people by the republican party.

Mr. Smith was very sincere in his remarks and kept on a plane with the audience. The republicans as well as democrats present listened keenly to what he said and, no doubt, profited in their understanding of the question of the tariff.

The force bill was briefly discussed by the speaker, but those who heard the earnest words of Barton Smith in his attack upon this monster encroachment, as proposed by the republican party, upon the electoral rights of the American people—words spoken by a lawyer knowing the constitution—words spoken by a Jeffersonian democrat, and an unflinching democrat of the best type; and those who saw the eyes of Barton Smith sparkle with the fire of intensity, would know that what he said carried conviction to the mind of every hearer.

But the greater part of Mr. Smith's remarks were addressed to the congressional situation.

Ashley, the republican candidate, was disrobed of his political "Joseph's coat of many colors," and his career reviewed from the time of his advent in politics.

While, personally, he had no enmity with Mr. Ashley, the speaker stated that he considered him politically one of the most dangerous men and one of the greatest foes the government ever had.

Mr. Smith referred to the attempted overthrow of the government and the dragging down into the mire of the high office of the presidency, by the impeachment proceedings instituted against Andrew Johnson.

He showed how Ashley, with Thad. Stevens of Pennsylvania and Oliver P. Morton of Indiana, had helped to prolong the civil war.

He showed how Ashley was distrusted by the republican party, and how his whole course was that of a backslider and renegade. That Ashley was the representative of railroads and the associate of Wall street monopolists.

A clear and strong contrast was drawn between Ashley and Ritchie, and in a masterly appeal Mr. Smith advocated the election of Byron Ritchie, who was unchanging and reliable, and who would ably represent the people of the district.

The meeting was closed with three cheers for the ticket, which were given with a will, and the audience dispersed, with plenty of practical food for thought in their minds.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.

Lausanne, Oct. 24.—The officials of the navigation company owning the pleasure steamer Mont Blanc, on which 26 persons were killed by an explosion at the Ouchy pier, Lake Geneva, last July, were tried Saturday on charges of criminal negligence. Director General Rochat, Engineer Fornerod, and Superintendent of Construction Lits were the prisoners. All three were found not guilty.

THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT

On the Crematory Matter to the Council.

They Tell of the Work of the Brownlee Furnace and Seem to Think It a Success.

This evening the report of the committee sent to Texas to investigate the crematory matter will be presented to the common council. The report, which seems to favor the Brownlee system, explains itself and is as follows:

To the Honorable Common Council, Toledo, Ohio:

Gentlemen: The committee appointed to visit San Aantonio, Texas, for the investigation of a garbage and night soil crematory, left this city on the evening of October 6, 1892. The committee consisted of Hon. V. J. Emmick, mayor, Hon. Joel Potter, police commissioner, Councilmen Theodore Schmidt and Lee, and Health Officer Fisher. The committee reached San Aantonio on Sunday evening October 9.

On Monday morning, in company with Mr. Wm. Garrethson, the manager of the Brownless patent crematory, we visited the United States military post at that place.

After receiving permission from General Dandy, the commandant, and Quartermaster Robinson, of the post, we visited the crematory and found that the furnace was in operation and that the night soil, garbage and manure from the stables were being consumed. We were satisfied that the furnace did effectual work with this class of material. We made a second visit to the officers in charge of the post and obtained permission to consume other material in the furnace, and under our own supervision ten barrels of night soil were procured from the city, each barrel containing from 45 to 50 gallons.

He arrived at the post on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock and dumped into the furnace two cart loads of manure, one cart load of garbage and the ten barrels of night soil and one cart load of night soil from the post.

The capacity of the furnace is 35 yards; the material was greater in amount than the capacity of the furnace and the liquid contents overflowed and ran down into the lower fire-place and was so high in the furnace that the stoke holes could not be opened. Notwithstanding this surcharge no appreciable effect was made upon the fires. Investigation at the flues and grates almost convinced us that the furnace was overtasked and that the experiment would be a failure. We remained for two hours and could distinguish the consumption of the material and its rapid destruction. A second cart load of night soil from the post was then discharged into it.

Besides the committee from this city, Drs. Ross and Simpson, of San Antonio, and Mayor Stevens, of Sedalia, Mo., were present. Councilman Muth, of San Antonio, remained at the furnace until 3 p. m., then the party above mentioned returned to the military post. At this hour the entire contents of the furnace were destroyed and nothing but ashes remained.

There was no incrustation on the furnace in any place whatsoever. A sample of ashes was obtained and is hereby presented for your inspection. There was no offensive odor emitted during the combustion. The furnace is so arranged that the dumping creates no nuisance.

We were all more than satisfied with the efficiency of the furnace. A larger furnace of 100 yards capacity provided with natural gas for fuel would greatly enhance its efficiency. The committee beg leave to thank the mayor and council of San Antonio, Texas, and other officials; also Mr. Wm. Garretson, the owner of the Brownlee patent, for their attention and hospitality to the committee.

RETURN OF THE CADETS.

Gen. Miles Experimented With Them

As Carriers They Beat Horsemen—There Was a General Ovation.

Tired?

That don't half express it. They're not out of bed yet. Toledo's pride, the Cadets, rolled in at 3 o'clock this morning after the busiest, hardest and most pleasant week they have ever experienced. Their trip to Chicago was a perfect ovation from beginning to end. The public, the press and the military complimented them on every side.

The regular army officials are taking a great interest in the use of bicycles in the army, and materially their eyes are on the Cadets as the first company in the country to be so equipped.

One day Gen. Miles dispatched two sets of couriers with messages to be delivered at Washington Park, eight miles distant from the military headquarters.

One set consisted of Lieut. Watters and ten men from the Cadets on wheels; the other of regular army cavalrymen. Neither set knew that the other had been sent on the same errand. The Cadets made the trip of 16 miles and returned ten minutes before the horses. Then Gen. Miles told them of the test to which he had put them, and paid them a high compliment.

On one other occasion the entire company with their wheels beat the cavalry. It was on Friday. They were ordered to ride from their quarters and report at the Auditorium, nine miles distant. They beat the horsemen by 15 minutes.

They were the only national guardsmen who went down town. They were honored with the great distinction of being given a position in line with the regular U. S. troops, and were classed as cavalry.

All along the line of march they were cheered and applauded to the echo. Everything was lovely at Chicago except perhaps the "feed," but then the Cadets don't mind a little thing like that.

They upheld the honor of the Future Great, and the city is proud of them.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

New York, Oct. 24.—John H. Wilson, who committed suicide in the Manhattan hotel, Atlantic City, by inhaling gas on Saturday night, was the representative of the the iron firm of Moorhead, McLeod & Co., at Pittsburg, and secretary of the Duquesne club of that city.

ENGLISH CABINET.

London, Oct. 24.—A cabinet council will be held on Thursday. Chief Secretary Morley will arrive from Ireland on Wednesday to attend the council. The drafting of an Irish home rule bill is expected to be the principal business.

TOLEDO BOYS WHO FISH

A Week's Trip on the Yacht Cruiser,

Or in Other Words: Who Stole the Hambone?

Bits of Gossip Snagged While Bees Have Been Buzzing Up and Down Ottawa Creek.

It was a chilling night in the bleak November.

All narratives start in that way, and it fits this one with the double exception that it wasn't a chilling night and it wasn't in November, but it was a balmy night and it was in July. There were eight jolly boys in the party and they had not been out but a few hours before they all had nom de plumes. There was "Commodore," big, fat, good-natured and a crack shot as well as an A1 yachtman. There was "Chinky H.," "Jack," "Cap'n," "Gus K.," "Old Grover." Then one they called "Smikey," and there was another one they did not have to call. He was always on hand without calling. They had started out in the trim yacht Cruiser to have a week of frolic, and how well they had it is left to such of the boys as Uncle Earnest Gertz, Moses Merikle, Col. Billy Gertz and Gus Bull, who stood in silent wonderment while the boys went through the celebrated Indian dance of the Hirssig Gun club, of which no counterfeit was ever attempted.

They sailed away for the port of Monroe and reached it in due time. The place was altogether too quiet and not picturesque enough, so camp was struck and the party started for Odeon island. Once there, a tent was pitched, the trim little yacht Teal was brought into use, and from that time on there was no end of enjoyment.

The fishing was of the finest and there was great rivalry between the boys. "Jack" had told much about his ability to reel in the finny monsters that roam about the open marshes. Jack was always fishing when he was wanted for anything else, and one of his little experiences is best told by the accompanying cuts. He had fallen fast asleep on the banks of a deep cut, and at the first bite had become so active that he slipped in and was sentenced to be hung up on a clothes line for two hours to dry before he would be permitted to again enter the sacred precincts of the charmed circle.

The incident was recorded in the log and duly posted on Billy Gertz's bulletin board, and it next remained for "Chinky

I've Got a Whale.

H." and "Smikey" to take their turn. They had not been gone but a little while when an uproarous laugh from over in the rice called attention to a sad catastrophe. "Smikey" had hooked a big one. It was four and aft, and had all sail on to hear him tell it. He tugged, but it wouldn't come up.

"I believe it's a whale," said Smikey.

"Go after it, then, you painter," said "Chinky."

A treacherous move of the boat ended the dialogue and brought out the laugh

After the Whale.

that had attracted attention. The disappearing man was brought to shore and his hook, which had been fastened in a root, was ignominiously taken from him and placed in the archives of the gun club.

Talk about eating. Those eight campers got away with enough to feed a company of soldiers. Everything moved off smoothly except one thing, and that, come to think, moved off smoothly, too, for nobody saw or heard it go.

It was a hambone the boys had been saving as a foundation for a pot of boullion. There never was a clue to its disappearance, except one. A low rakish craft hove in sight the day before and stood on and off the island for some time with which he suffered for a long time, until he took Hood's Sarsaparilla and was completely cured. Other members of his family also take in a rather suspicious manner. The only reason the boys had to suspect this craft, with its lone fisherman in it, was the fact that according to the log the hambone and craft disappeared at exactly the same hour.

But with a crack shot aboard the loss of a hambone did not spoil the boullion. The "Commodore" took a couple of shells in his pocket and started out, and the crack of the powder in a few seconds brought the boys on deck only to see the "Commodore" returning with the nicest "Virginia rail" ever seen on the island.

The Commadore Comes in.

The boullion was soon made and as rapidly devoured.

Each day during the week in the marsh trips were made to various places and during one of these, which was of a nocturnal nature, the cows on the island took possession of the camp on shore.

There was once a very pretty song written about the cows and the clover, and Maggie and the red barn, but all that beauty has vanished to the boys, for the cows made a complete wreck of the cook shop.

With apologies to Edward Bellamy, 2nd, a few verses were jotted down in the log.

The cows are in the kitchen,
They camped out there all night;
And when the morning watch was piped
That cook shop was a sight.

The week came to a close all too soon, and the boys, who had gone out for a week's recreation, took another week in order to get over it.

When troubled in spirit, when weary of life,
When I faint 'neath its burdens and shrink from its strife,
When its fruits, turned to ashes, are mocking my taste,
And its fairest scenes seem but a desolate waste,
Then come ye not near me, my sad soul to cheer,
With friendship's soft accents or sympathy's tear;
The sole consolation on earth that I seek
Is a rod and a line and a day at the Creek
—Gunckel.

There is not a more beautiful stretch of scenery on this broad continent than that which the Ottawa river presents just now. From Auburndale along the ten miles of its winding length to its mouth in Maumee bay it is a series of varied and charming pamoramas. It is singular how few there are in this city who know anything of this beautiful river.

The people are beginning, however, to realize a little of its beauties and along those ten miles there are over one hundred cottages and shanties built expressly as fishing resorts. There are not less than 600 pleasure boats on the river and five years from now there will be thrice that number.

The river and adjoining swamps are rich in fish and game products. Reed birds were never so plentiful, and as for blackbirds the huntsman can bag from 5 to 25 at every shot.

There is a crying necessity for protection to the waters of the Ottawa river. As a pleasure resort it will be priceless to Toledo in the coming years if the proper steps are taken promptly.

There are a class of outlaws on the Michigan side of the stream who illegally rob the river every year of hundreds of tons of game fish. These brigands fear neither God nor man and their sole desire is, like that of the tiger, to destroy. Their nets and spears are at work all the year around.

Major Leflet is doing good work in arresting violators of the law, but he has no jurisdiction in Michigan and that state might as well have a wooden Indian for a fish and game warden as the one she has. He refuses to aid Ohio officials in suppressing lawlessness and laughs at the idea of arresting a net fisherman.

It has been suggested that a meeting of all interested in rod and line fishing be held in Toledo with a view of taking some action in this matter.

Another grievance is that corporations like the Toledo & Ann Arbor Railroad company are allowed to fill up the river and practically blockade it. At the Ann Arbor bridge above Kramer's the river has been narrowed to a width of 30 feet so that a solid wall of stone confronts the fish that formerly pushed their way far up the stream. This practically spoils the fishing above that point, and those owning shanties up stream are righteously indignant. The county commissioners perpetrated an unpardonable outrage in allowing the Ann Arbor people to obstruct the river thus.

A movement is on foot to run a couple of steam launches from the city clear up to the Lagrange street bridge, but the blockading of the river precludes the idea for the present.

The Eagle Fishing club, of which Jack and Dick Oberle and Mike Curran are the leading members, is one of the best organizations of the kind on the creek. The members are not only sportsmen in the true sense of the word, but they are mighty good fellows who have always a bite and a sup for the weary wayfarer who calls at the shanty. Dick Oberle makes bouillon that is simply out of sight.

Properly constructed it is a dish fit for the gods and on the creek, with its wealth of reed birds, rail, etc., there is every opportunity for a cook to display his ability. This cottage is about a stone's throw from Mottsinger's and is located on one of the beautiful spots on the Ottawa river.

MERCURIAL

Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Ark., says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and commenced using S. S. S. After taking several bottles, I was entirely cured and able to resume work. S.S.S. is the greatest medicine for blood poisoning to-day on the market."

AT TRINITY CHURCH.

Rev. Charles Scadding Takes Christopher Columbus

For His Subject and Talks Interestingly and Instructively on the Same.

Rev. Charles Scadding preached an appropriate and impressive sermon at Trinity church yesterday morning at the special service appointed by the House of Bishops to be used by the Episcopal church throughout the country. He took for his text Isaiah 49:18: "Lift up thine eyes round about and behold; all these gather themselves together and come unto me. As I live, saith the Lord, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride doeth." He alluded to the legends of pre-Columbian visitors to America as types of what is actually the case to-day, and, while giving due credit to Ericsson and the Northmen, he said it was an abuse of language to say they discovered America. It was not difficult to paint the most glowing picture of the nation's progress since the landing of Columbus, nor was it impossible to make the darker shades predominate, but the Church of God was not the place for either the praise or blame of men; it was her mission to point out the foundation of national as well as individual salvation. With the event which was worthy of special commemoration they were to recall the actor in it, the man, if heroic, would with whom patriotism was not a struggle for office, and as they celebrated the 400th anniversary of the nation's discovery, they were to turn to Christopher Columbus for instruction in the tone and temper of mind, the faith, the patience, the fixity of purpose which made his venture a success. As 400 years ago this month Columbus stood on the prow of his caravel and with joy and thankfulness gazed on America, so the preacher exhorted his hearers to lift up their eyes and view their country so that they might discover some of its distinguishing characteristics and then in the faith, hope, and courage of Columbus, they would be prepared for what that discovery revealed.

Applying the prophecy of the text to America immigration has naturally suggested, "All these come to thee"—Jews, Turks, Irish, Chinese, negroes, English, German, French, all nations come to America. There were certain classes, disturbers of the peace, who were to be resolutely excluded from this country, but there was great need for skilled labor and farmers and the United States had nothing to fear from well meaning immigrants.

The text pointed out what was to be done with them, "Thou shalt clothe thee with them as with an ornament." This was the divine command. Here was America's duty. To weld all these foreign separate and distinct units into one grand united whole. To place them in the crucibles of American institutions, until she converts them into the glorious ornaments of American law-abiding citizens.

There were certain sure ways by which America was to clothe herself with these different nationalities as with an ornament. By education, good statesmanship, the press, the church. He refuted the charge made by some that the public schools of America foster infidelity, and spoke of the teachers as a band of workers as noble and saintly as ever consecrated themselves to the service of humanity. By good statesmanship was not meant political trickery. There was much to mourn and oppose in current political affairs, but there were many honest and efficient men in public service, and these were to be appreciated if we would increase their number.

Again, America can "clothe herself with these nations, as with an ornament," most effectively, by means of the press, and here Mr. Scadding paid a glowing tribute to the power of the press, and closed his argument by referring to the church, which by her regularly recurring services, by the efforts she is making to be in "touch" with all men, by her revelation to men of the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man, is a means this country may use of binding the nations to her. This was aptly illustrated by an appropriate reference to the Columbian exhibition which will be one of the best means Providence can place in America's hands for binding the people who come to her about her. Why should not the church sanction and approve of the elevating, artistic and educational features of the world's fair doing their refining task during the afternoon of Sunday. The sermon closed with an exhortation to all to pray and work for their country.

There was a large congregation and all seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion.

WOODSTOCK, Ulster Co., April 25, 1892.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY:

Dear Sir—Naturally energetic I found it hard to be the victim of fell disease. I was terribly troubled with my stomach, my food would break up sour after eating—would wake up every night with a burning, sour distressed feeling there, that made my life almost unbearable. I doctored with physicians and took many so-called cures but none helped me; seeing in the newspapers of the wonderful cures performed by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., I determined to try it; after using it a little while relief came and before I had finished the third bottle I was entirely cured. Just think of it stranger, from a sick man—ENTIRELY CURED. ALWAYS Before using Favorite Remedy I was constantly constipated and have not been troubled that way since. But the greatest blessing was the cure it performed for my wife, who previous to taking it was troubled with sickness common to all women She was so ill that she could hardly drag herself about the house; she too tried all kinds of so-called positive cures but with no avail until she began using Favorite Remedy, and that was the medicine we had been praying for. After using it but a short while she began to pick up in health and strength and is a well woman to-day. CURES I honestly believe had it not been for Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy she would have been in her grave to-day. It's the greatest medicine on earth. It's worth its weight in gold.

Yours truly, JAMES W. SHULTIS.

Read this over again ye sceptics and incredulous ones! Ought you not to use this valuable medicine and enjoy health and happiness?

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

The Political Equality Club Will Hold a Social.

Important Meeting of Woodbridge Union—The Henrietta Monroe Oyster Supper and Musical.

The Political Equality club met with Mrs. C. Frank, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Trost, 324 Batavia street, Saturday afternoon, President Claud'a Q. Murphy in the chair.

The minutes of the organization of the club, with its first officers and members, were read by the secretary, Mrs. Beeley.

The president then gave a resume of the club's progress during the year, its plan of work and rapidly increasing membership.

The report of the lecture committee was then received. The receipts were encouraging, though not nearly so large a number of tickets has been sold as is desirable and necessary to make the lectures pay for themselves.

The course is not a money-making scheme, by any means. The design of the club is to educate and inform the people on a question of which they know little—the woman question.

If the tickets sold, will pay the expense of securing lecturers, hall, etc., the club will be perfectly satisfied.

On account of so few members being present, the election of officers for the coming year was postponed for two weeks—Saturday afternoon, November 5.

It was decided to make the meeting a social one, that every member and friend of the club may be present, and a committee of five ladies was appointed to fix the place of meeting, and decide what the exercises should be.

The program, etc., will be announced by the city papers, and every member is urgently requested to be present.

The reading from Civil Governments was then given, and a plan of work for the winter was next taken up.

Several plans were discussed, but the favorite one seemed to be the study of the Constitutional History of Ohio, on which papers will be read, to be followed by general discussion. Short parliamentary drills will also be given.

At the next regular meeting of the club Mrs. Claude Q. Murphy will read the first paper on the Constitutional History of Ohio.

The president spoke of the importance of working with renewed zeal for the success of the school suffrage bill.

The ladies having in charge the arrangements for the annual meeting of the club are: Mrs. Quigley, chairman; Mrs. Fannie Beeley, Mrs. C. Frank, Mrs. Napeer, Mrs. Susan I. Moore.

The meeting then adjourned to meet in two weeks, at a place to be designated by this committee.

Woodbridge union will hold an important meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Callard, 629 Elm street, to-morrow (Tuesday) afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Sumner will be present and matters of interest to the union will be considered. Every member is earnestly requested to be present.

There will be a pleasant meeting of the Emerson class at the home of Mrs. Harmon, on Batavia street, this evening.

On Wednesday evening, at Memorial Hall annex, Henrietta L. Monroe W. C. T. U. will give an oyster supper and literary and musical entertainment. A splendid program has been arranged and the ladies are preparing a tempting feast of good things. A large attendance is expected.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Colloquial club will be held at the home of Mrs. Rosa L. Segur, 916 Broadway, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The paper will b eread by Mrs. M. E. Dutton, on "What Shall We Wear?"

A HAPPY SEQUENCE.

A Swedes Good Luck Amid Fortune's Adversities.

It Is an Ill Wind that Blows Nobody Good.

In criminal court to-day Edward Hawkins and Geo. Glascow were tried on the charge of assault with intent to rob a Swede named Hugh Peterson.

There is quite an interesting story connected with this prosecution.

On the day of the assault, Hawkins and Glascow had just been released from the central police station, with orders to get out of town before sundown. They proceeded south on St. Clair street, and at the bridge over the Lake Shore track in the Fifth ward they observed Peterson seated on one of the abutments of the structure. They engaged him in conversation, and learned that he had just arrived in Toledo. Thinking he had money, they both sprang upon the disconsolate foreigner. A struggle followed, during which the Swede endeavored to defend himself with one hand, while in the other he clinched some object with a grip of despair.

His fist was finally wrenched open, and there was revealed to the avaricious gaze of the rogues a single ten-cent piece, representing the worldly possession of that poor Swede. The money was appropriated and the Swede left, bruised and bleeding from his injuries.

Capture followed, and Peterson was held as a witness. Less than a year ago, Peterson landed in Castle Garden with a life dower in America, to make a living in. He worked his way west as far as Indianapolis, where he fell sick. Upon recovering sufficient strength, he started on a weary tramp, homeward, intending to work his way to New York and thence over the water to home and friends.

It was a hard struggle, and as he seated him self on St. Clair street, weak from hunger and exposure, sick at heart and in body, the poor Swede was on the verge of despair, and about ready to abandon hope of ever again seeing the loved ones over the sea. Then came the attack by two ruffians, followed by arrest as a witness, and Peterson concluded that his cup of bitterness had been filled to overflowing.

This cloud of adversity proved to have a silver lining, however, as the state pays a dollar a day and board to all witnesses held in custody.

Peterson now has $80 standing to his credit as witness fees. All is plain sailing now, and the Swede will soon be in the arms of friends again.

THE OIL FIELDS.

New Territory Is Showing Much Promise.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—It is beginning to look as though there was going to be a pretty extensive oil field opened up southwest of here, after all, as developments of the past week indicate.

The Bee was always sincere in its belief that the territory lying southwest of this city would develop itself some day, and already the assertion is proving true. From present indications an oil field may be discovered that will give this city another big impetus, as there still remains a large scope of territory that has never been touched by the drill, and which will doubtless be tested now, since the crude has been found here in paying quantities.

Several wells have lately been completed on the southwest edge of the great reservoir, which have shown up remarkably well. The New Bremen Gas company's well on the F. Schroeder farm, to the south of developments, has caused quite a stir, and that company is going to drill the surrounding territory for all it is worth. The Ohio Oil company completed an important well on the Weile farm the other day.

It is estimated to be good for 100 barrels. The well is located several miles southwest of here, and other wells will be drilled here immediately.

The New Bremen Natural Gas company also completed their No. 1 on the Frey farm, near the Schroeder, and the production is about 90 barrels.

This proves without the shade of a shadow of a doubt that this is not merely a pocket of oil, as was at first supposed, but it is believed to be an extensive pool, running in a southwesterly direction.

The theory sounds plausible, as the connecting line would link it with the northwestern Ohio field. The same company is drilling No. 2 on the Schroeder farm, and if this well turns out as good as either of the other two, there will be great activity in that vicinity, and operations will be increased with renewed force and energy.

It will only be a question of a few years, and the entire stretch of country lying between the newly opened field and this city will be one extensive oil field. It is a notable fact that the belt is gradually creeping in a southerly direction, and the day may not be far distant when New Bremen and St. Marys will be linked together by a rich and productive field of crude petroleum.

The territory is nearly all under lease and as necessity does not demand drilling, the value of the field is underrated. The Ohio Oil company has completed No. 1 on the J. R. Ankerman farm, in Noble township, and north of the reservoir. It was hit and is good for 65 barrels. The same company has finished and shot No. 1 located on the southeast corner of the Thomas Dante farm, same township.

It is good for about 50 barrels. The same company has completed No. 15 on the Gochenour farm, Logan township, and is good for 40 barrels.

Riley, Milligan & Co. have completed a test well on the northeast corner of the Isaac Sheely farm, in Franklin township, Mercer county, and on the south edge of the great lake. It is good for 50 barrels, and is considered a splendid find. This shows that the field is somewhat spotted, and when one drills a well it is a mere gamble whether he gets crude or not.

THE MAYOR AND CITIZENS

Will Hear Cornet Solos and Music From New York

And Chicago When the Long Distant Telephone Line to Toledo Is Formerly Opened.

The long distance telephone line into Toledo will be formally opened now as soon as possible with a seance to the mayor, city officials, prominent citizens and the press.

C. E. Mosley, district superintendent, who had charge of the Chicago end of the line when it was opened from Chicago to New York, will come to Toledo on the occasion of the opening here to take charge of the proceedings.

The mayor will say howdy to the mayors of New York and Chicago, and concerts given in both those cities will be heard here by a roomful of people. Cornet playing going on in New York will be thrown out into the room by means of a large funnel. Many interesting experiments will be tried.

At the local office this morning a Bee heard a man speaking in Pittsburg, although the Bee was at the time at least four feet from the instrument.

The long distance phone works much better than the local affairs, as there are fewer disturbing conditions. The workmen on the line have an instrument as large as a person's hand that they connect to the line and lay on the ground, and then, climbing the pole, can hear the thing talking away in the grass 20 feet below, the voice coming from New York or some other distant point.

The positions of the local booths have not been determined as yet.

Crossing Cross Purposes.

Confusion reigned on Summit street a little before midnight Saturday. Jacob Hockenberger had prepared to lay a stone crossing from his saloon and restaurant across to the entrance to "Wonderland," on t'other side. Workmen had torn out granite blocks tot he street car tracks, when, on complaint of somebody, the police put a stp to the work. In vain Mr. Hockenberger insisted that he had permission fromt he city engineer. He could not produce it, or find the engineer, and was compelled to fill up ptheho les in the street. This morning he went to the engineer's office and obtained the permit which had been granted on Saturday and locked it up so nobody could get it.

King's Red Letter Report.

C. A. King & Co. issued a special red-letter market report Saturday.

Christopher Columbus discovered America four hundred years ago. He was a prophet, while our boy Solomon is only the seventh son of a prophet.

The King of Spain listened frigidly to the predictions of Columbus, and many grain buyers were indifferent to the predictions of "our boy Solomon" last July; when he said that this would be a "rocky" season, and that the off grade wheat would be difficult to handle profitably. It has been unprofitable. Prices then were seven cents higher than now, and 3-Soft then was only four cents below Two, while now it is eight.

Doing a Big Business.

The Toledo & Ohio Central is doing the largest business in its history just at the present time, as the increase in its earnings indicate. The immense traffic is not due to a boom in the coal trade, on which the company relies for a large per cent. of its business. The shipments of all kinds of freight are unusually heavy, and the company cannot supply the demand for cars. The car famine, which has prevailed in this state for several months, shows no signs of abating, and the situation, if reports are true, is instead becoming worse. The shortage of cars is felt not only by the railroad companies, which are striving to increase their earnings, but by shippers as well, and the life of the car service agent is quite miserable.

First Ice This Season.

Weather Observer Hanner says of the frost last night, predicted by him yesterday: "There were frosts as far east as Pennsylvania and as far south as the Ohio valley, due to the advance of the cold wave from the northwest. In this vicinity the temperature was as low as 31 degrees this morning, but just east, around Sandusky it was considerably higher. In the immediate vicinity the frost was sufficient to kill off vegetation and ice was formed in sheltered places—the first of the season. The temperature in the northwest was down to 20 degrees. The weather will continue cold to-day, and warm up very slowly to-morrow.

Great Fishing at the Creek.

Lovers of the royal sport of angling can now have all the sport they desire at Ten Mile creek.

The recent frosts have made the water cold and bracing, and driven the game fish into deep water.

The long, eel-like pike has hooked on his armor, and is tramping up and down by Major Leffler's dock, with a chip on his shoulder, impatient for conquest.

WAKE UP.

If you wake up in the morning with a bitter or bad taste in your mouth, Languor, Dull Headache, Despondency, Constipation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. It corrects the bilious stomach, sweetens the breath and cleanses the furred tongue. Children as well as adults sometimes eat something that does not digest well, producing Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Restlessness, or Sleeplessness—a good dose of Regulator will give relief. So perfectly harmless is this remedy that it can be taken by the youngest infant or the most delicate person without injury, no matter what the condition of the system may be. It can do no harm if it does no good, but its reputation for 40 years proves it never fails in doing good.

Then there is the king of game fish, the black bass, ready for a few rounds or fight to a finish, if he is properly approached, and with a lure that the old fellow has not raised his family to beware of. There are thousands of black bass in Ten Mile creek, and this is the time of year to catch them. Major Leflet always has minnows, boats, tackle, etc., to supply all, and he knows where fish are to be caught.

Richard Hattersley & Son have secured the contract for the erection of the new Swift meat building.

To-Night's Sporting Event.

Boxing and wrestling will constitute good sport to-night at the Toledo Athletic club rooms. The entertainment is for the benefit of Charlie Brown, who lately fought with King Kelly. There are a number of clever pairs opposed on the cards, and the fun will be great.

The committee on open meeting of the Central Labor union has assurance of the coming, on November 22, of P. J. McGuire, national secretary, carpenters; Henry Weisman, editor Bakers' Journal, New York; Wiles Kehoe, of Chicago, and C. W. McDonald, Ohio inspector of shops and factories. Efforts are being made to secure Col. R. G. Ingersoll.

Elected a Rabbi.

At a meeting of the Shomer Emunim congregation, held yesterday, Rev. Dr. E. L. Schreiber, formerly of Spokane Falls, Washington, was elected rabbi. Rabbi Schreiber will assume the responsibilities of his new charge forthwith, and will deliver his initial sermon Friday evening at 7:30, at the temple on Tenth street.

Our Team Going Abroad.

The Y. M. C. A. boys feeling pretty good over their victory in the foot ball game with the Outing club. The score, 14 to 7, in their favor, was remarkable when it is taken into consideration that the Outing boys are one third heavier. The Y. M. C. A. team goes to Fort Wayne Saturday to play the Y. M. C. A. team of that city. A game is also being arranged with the "Prep" team at Oberlin.

PAINTERS' APPRENTICES

Union No 7 Is After the Excess of "Cubs."

At a special meeting of Union No. 7, Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators, held yesterday, John Brereton & Co. were replaced on the list of strictly union shops. An official communication from the Master House Painters' association was received, to which a reply will be prepared in due time. The men in P. Eichenberger's shop were instructed to leave his employ if the condition of affairs is not altered by next Wednesday, October 26. The trouble there is the same as at Brereton & Co.'s, except that while the case settled only involved one apprentice, it is claimed that Eichenberger has four apprentices to five men, whereas the rule is one apprentice to every ten men or fraction over 50 per cent. of ten. In the case of Brereton & Co. the union considered that as the young man had worked long enough in other shops he was capable of earning mechanics wages and going into the union. Rather than agree to this the firm let him go. The master painters think that they should be allowed to keep the number of apprentices throughout the year to which they are entitled, calculating on the average of workmen employed during that year, arguing that it will be better for the apprentices and the trade generally.

Manager Southard Gets a Prize at a Raffle.

Chinkie H., pacer, very aged and a three-minute performer within the powerful memory of the oldest inhabitant, was raffled at Charlie Hersig's, on Cherry street, Saturday night. John Hannon had bought the patriarchal side-wheeler for $30 and to make money conceived the idea of putting the "hoss" up at 50 cents a chance. About 200 tickets were sold, Hannon's friend, John Sullivan doing big work in disposing of them, for which he received a supper. The prize was won by Ticket 46, held by Jim Southard, and Charlie Wernert bought the horse for $10, as a good funeral animal.

WALDORF WAS PLEASED.

The Chicago Demonstration Beyond the Power of Words.

Col. G. P. Waldorf, collector of internal revenue, got back from Chicago this morning. He says "Chicago is a great town. The dedication of the world's fair buildings was too immense to express in language. Just imagine 30 acres covered with people. From the galleries in the buildings one could see more people than probably ever seen by any human being before. The ceremonies were a grand success. Not one in ten could hear what was going on during the dedication ceremonies, but they could imagine it all, and nobody was kicking. Everything was on a grand scale, and was handled superbly. It gave a great idea of the enterprise and energy of Chicago people. They have a great city, and the pluck and energy to make it take a great position among the cities of the world.

"The buildings are not completed; but things have taken such shape that one can see what they are going to be. They are on a grand scale, and adapted to a grand display. The Ohio building is not as large as some. The appropriation was small as compared with others, and only about $25,000 could be used for the building, but it is very creditable. The governor of Ohio received quite an ovation at the ceremonies and during the parade.

"There was a general expression of kindly regret that the president could not be present at this great national commemoration; but it was conceded that he was doing right by staying by his sick wife.

"As to complaints of the treatment of Ohio people, they simply had to share the common lot. I presume there were half a million strangers in Chicago, and the city was taxed to the utmost to entertain them; but I think, as a rule, the hotel people were fair toward every one. There may have been some exceptions, and Ohio people may have suffered among the exceptions."

EXTENDING THE CAUSE.

Organization of Christian Endeavor Branch at Neapolis.

The delegates who left here Saturday evening for Neapolis, where they were to organize a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, returned this morning, feeling that their efforts were crowned with success.

Upon their arrival at Neapolis, they were escorted to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Mason, where a large number of relatives and friends of the family were assembled for the purpose of celebrating their fiftieth anniversary.

Rev. O. J. Britton addressed the assembly, and presented the couple with a handsome chair, after which the guests retired to a large room where stretching across its entire length was a table loaded with things luscious and tempting.

Sunday morning, at the usual church service, M. D. Merrick gave a very able and forcible talk on reasons for organizing and Sunday afternoon a conference was held for the purpose of discussing the

Sunday evening at 6:30, a regular Christian Endeavor meeting, conducted by Miss Ella Hime, took place, the topic being, "Witnessing for Christ;" all participated very freely, and promptly, and as a result, the hour was very profitably spent.

The program arranged for this special occasion was then carried out. Miss Blakeslee speaking on "What the Y. P. S. C. E. Is." Miss Grace Perigo on "What It Does," Miss Anna West, of Sylvania, on Why It Is Denominational, and Inter-Denominational," Miss Chidester on "Its Relation to the Church."

At the conclusion of the above, Mr. Fred W. Hamlay took up the work of organizing, which resulted in 19 active and 8 associate members, and the following officers: President, Miss Inez Royce; vice president, Miss Susie Fuller; recording secretary, Alonzo Billings; corresponding secretary, Rev. O. J. Britton; treasurer, R. C. Roach.

Registration days this week—Friday and Saturday. Democrats should register or they cannot vote.

What does the Preachers' union think of the flim-flam adjunct to republican headquarters, anyway?

An interesting article from the pen of E. Hazard Wells, an old Toledo boy, will be found in this issue.

The straw-vote taker is abroad. The vote is usually as the fellow wants it, and is valueless in most instances.

Gen. W. I. Squire will be in command of the republican procession to-night. And he is for Ashley too—to stay at home.

"Col." Mike McDonald, of Chicago, has flopped to Harrison. The republicans are welcome to Mike. He is a good riddance.

Tammany Hall is pushing the young men to the front. Grover Cleveland will have a tremendous majority in New York state.

Larry Neal will talk tariff reform in the towns in the Hocking valley this week, and no one is more competent to discuss the subject.

Grover Cleveland's course during the present campaign has won for him thousands of friends. He is a true American in every sense.

Boston has won the base ball championship and at the same time demonstrated that the high-salaried ball players were worthy of their hire.

Lucas county will be in the democratic column if the full party vote is cast. Even republicans are almost willing to concede this fact when pressed.

Byron Ritchie will address the voters of the district nearly every day until election. A partial list of appointments appears at the head of the column.

Mr. Hudson must be causing serious defection from the republican ranks, which may account for the daily abuse heaped on him by the opposition press.

It will not be so much Junior Jim Ashley's arrogance as his presumption that will sting, should he become boss, as he would, if his father is elected to congress.

Ward organization is going on. This is the strongest weapon which can be used to defeat further republican control in local, state and national governments.

Relics of antiquity don't go in this proud land of the free. The Toledo district is not of the back number order, and it wants a man like Byron F. Ritchie to represent it in congress.

Ashley's work for Toledo's harbor is given in another column. What has Toledo to expect from him if by any means he should again get to congress? Nothing. Vote for Byron Ritchie.

Clem Carpenter's declaration in favor of Cleveland was not a surprise to those who know what a student he is of political economy. It would be better for the country if others followed his example.

And now Gov. Buchanan is charged with selling out to the republican national committee, and, if true, it is only another evidence of the corruption methods used by the party of putrifaction and spoils.

If the republicans secure a few more "converts" like General Sickles, Harrison will not carry a state in the union. Sickles' great speech for Cleveland and Stevenson the other night was red-hot and right in line.

Harbor appropriation figures printed in this issue are official. They are not campaign roorbacks, but can be verified at Washington. Compared with the work of other congressmen, Ashley's efforts for Toledo counted but little.

Hon. D. D. Donovan is speaking every night in the adjoining district, and is doing good work in arousing the voters to the importance of the present contest. The Fifth will re-elect Mr. Donovan and assist materially on the general ticket.

Of all the democrats of state and national reputation who met in Chicago last week not one but saw a bright future for his party, while on the other hand republicans were not jubilant and would not commit themselves to predictions. These facts are well worth study.

The Mansfield Shield and Banner is doing yeoman service in favor of the election of Hon. M. D. Harter. The candidate and cause for which he strives is worthy of the hearty support of the voters of the Fourteenth district. Mr. Harter's success in November appears almost certain.

The Bee desires to thank the principals of the various public schools and others for their promptness in sending in accounts as per request, of the proceedings in their schools on Columbus day. Lack of space prevented the whole of them being published, but their kindness is appreciated.

Democrats never had a more important duty to perform than that of registering. This can be done next Friday and Saturday, and in order to vote must be attended to. A splendid ticket is in the field, deserving of every vote. See to it that the full strength is registered and then polled.

Gen. Dan Sickles has struck terror into the hearts of the republicans who have been gloating over the fact that the general had a kind word for President Harrison. The general says now that he admired Harrison as a soldier, but as the leader of a battalion of office holders he abhorred him.

Republican journals and republican speakers are laying aside the tariff question and shaking the shirt once more with their old-time vigor. They are coming down the home stretch like the angry farmer with his unruly team of oxen, who was once moved to remark: "D—n our fool souls, somebody head us off."

Secretary Charles Foster is in Iowa bemoaning the fate that is to befall the country by the election of Mr. Cleveland. It is rather peculiar that a man of Mr. Foster's intelligence can presume so much as to the ignorance of the people. Mr. Cleveland's record while president is sufficient to refute any such twaddle as that uttered by Mr. Foster.

Forcible and elegant as a writer, Henry Waterson's dedicatory address places him in the front rank of American orators. The address breathes the very spirit of exalted patriotism, and is thoroughly, sturdily American. Progressive, patriotic and polished, Henry Waterson stands today the personification of the unadulterated American gentleman.

The republicans are to have a rally to-night at Memorial hall. The campaign committee has exhausted the voting lists in the selection of vice presidents, among whom are Kent Hamilton, Charley Griffin, and other equally well-known Ashley men. To complete the affair, Hon. Jacob Romeis, another enthusiastic (?) Ashleyite, is to preside. All this looks nice to the public, but it does not take much of an observer to discover that there is more sham than sincerity involved.

An illustration of good government and discipline could be seen in the appearance of the fire laddies in the parade last Friday. How is such condition brought about? The board in control is not continually before the public with squabbles and quarrels, and the men understand that the proper performance of duty is all that is required of them, not being compelled to play spy on their associates. What a change for the better if this policy prevailed with the police board and force. It is not possible, however, under the present order of things at headquarters.

Two weeks more and voting day will be at hand. The campaign has been one of the most remarkable on record because of the lack of torchlight processions, and the other accessories of a presidential election. It has largely been a time of serious reflection on the part of the people since the conventions made their selections. The democratic party has nothing to fear from the most careful consideration of its principles—in fact, such is desired. When compared with those of the republican party the difference is at once apparent. With such a candidate as Mr. Cleveland, and a platform entirely in the interest of the people, success must come to the democratic hosts in this year of our Lord.

IT WILL NOT WORK, GENTLEMEN.

There has been received at Republican headquarters on Superior street a case of spurious paper money representing "Wild Cat" currency. It is proposed to spring the stuff on an unsuspecting public the three last days of the campaign as a sample of the money that will be in circulation should Grover Cleveland be elected. The object, of course, is obvious.

It is expected to create a panic, and in the general stampede it is hoped that the voters will lose their heads and vote for the party in power.

It is a desperate and despicable dodge, but it will not work.

Democrats should be on their guard. There will be a number of roorbacks sprung, and the object of all will be the same—to stampede the voters and by hook or crook elect Harrison.

JUST A FEW, MR. ASHLEY.

In view of the fact that Mr. Ashley speaks at Memorial hall this evening, and that he has positively refused to meet Mr. Ritchie in a joint political discussion, it may not be out of place to ask Mr. Ashley, in behalf of a large number of interested parties, to answer the following pertinent questions:

First—Does he, as president of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad, sanction the blacklisting of discharged employes?

Second—If he is the friend of labor, as he professes, why does he allow the iniquitous blacklisting system to prevail under his management?

Third—Is he not desirous to have the harbor at Frankfort, Mich., deepened and widened, and that at Uncle Sam's expense?

Fourth—If elected, for which harbor would he seek appropriations—Toledo or Frankfort?

Fifth—That while in congress, his lack of care for the local interests of the district—especially in connection with the Toledo harbor—became so marked, that his attention was called to the matter by citizens of Toledo, when he justified his action in that he "owed Toledo nothing"—it "had done nothing for him;" while in other parts of the district he sought favor, on the ground that he had been opposed to voting the farmers' money to build up Toledo. Is this true?

After explaining the above, Mr. Ashley might consent to answer in a brief way the following charges made against him:

First—That from the outbreak of the rebellion, he took open and positive ground against the war policy adopted by both congress and the president, bitterly denouncing the same, at Washington and among his constituents.

Second—That he was especially violent against President Lincoln, denouncing him as "a d—d old fool," under "henpecked submissiveness to his disloyal wife."

Third—That he carried his hostility to the government war policy so far as to refuse his aid in raising recruits for the depleted union army—giving as his reason therefor that he "didn't like the stock on the Potomac"—referring to President Lincoln and his administration.

When Mr. Ashley has answered the foregoing, the Bee has another batch equally as interesting.

RITCHIE AT GENOA.

Democracy in Line in Little Ottawa

Geneva, Oct. 24.—(Special.)—B. F. Ritchie, the democratic candidate for congress, and L. C. Cole, of Bowling Green, addressed an immense and enthusiastic audience here Saturday evening.

Mr. Ritchie referred to Mr. Ashley's career in and out of congress, and created great enthusiasm by his telling hits on his opponent and the party.

Mr. Cole in an eloquent speech, applied himself on the general issues, and was enthusiastically cheered.

Little Ottawa is right in line and Lucas may rest assured she will show up with 2,000 majority for Ritchie and reform.

FLIM-FLAMMED.

Six Voters Are We All the Way From Maumee,

As Straight As You'll Find in the County;

After Boodle We Came and Are We to Blame

If They Buncoed Us Out of the Bounty?

That Ashley Paid As a Matter of Trade—Ah, Jim, I'm Afraid, It Will Lose You Some Votes in This County.

The proverb anent glass houses and stone throwing does not seem to be understood at republican headquarters.

The mud-slinging indulged in by the organ on the corner relative to democratic headquarters does not stick.

It is not generally known, perhaps, to the truly good and honorable gentlemen who have been so busily engaged in denouncing gambling, that a full-fledged gaming place is an adjunct to the republican headquarters.

In the upper rooms are a series of card tables of the most approved style, and on them are all the necessities for a first-class gambling institution.

The den has been used to fleece unwary countrymen, and a sneak trick, unequalled for meanness in the history of criminal records, was played on a number of Waynesfield township republicans.

Last Thursday they came down here—some half dozen of them—at the request of the Ashley management. They were given, it is said, $20 each for services rendered or to be rendered.

They were induced to go down to the republican headquarters, and after bowling up a few times were conducted upstairs.

There was nothing particularly harmful, just a little game of poker.

"The Judge was a Christian and played on the square,
Though he handled his cards pretty close;
He could cut down your hand every time to a pair,
And deal himself threes when he chose.

"The Colonel could play a more 'difficult' game,
I don't mean to say he would cheat;
But he held the best cards when the big betting came,
And some hands that couldn't be beat."

The rhyme is familiar to everyone, as is the result.

The six citizens of Maumee were not in it with the judge and the colonel, and besides dropping their $20 each were out quite a pile besides.

Thus it is that the Ashley people hold on to their barrel.

It is, perhaps, the meanest trick on record, and while Jim Ashley and Jim Southard are probably incapable of performing it, still the republican club, which permits such business, is directly accountable.

If Chief Raitz is really desirous of closing up the gambling dens, would it not be the proper caper to drop in on the republican club some evening?

Mr. Ashley and the Hog.

To the Editor: In 1864, Ashley made a virulent republican speech at Defiance, wherein he denounced the democratic party as the most corrupt the country had known in its history.

In 1874, Ashley made a democratic speech at Napoleon, O., wherin he reversed himself, and declared that the republican party had far outgrown its usefulness and had become the most gigantic fraud the world had ever known.

This was just after President Grant had kicked him out of the gubernatorial chair of Montana territory. To illustrate the utter baseness of the republicans Gov. Ashley told the story that Tom Corwin used to tell about a client he once had who was a hog thief, and how he cleared him.

The man had acknowledged that he stole the hog, but Corwin did the best he could, and, to his surprise, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. Corwin asked his client how he accounted for the verdict, and he told him confidentially that everyone of those jurors had some of that hog. And so it was, Ashley declared, with the republican party. They were all thieves, and everyone of them had some of that hog.

Fulton County Republican.

New York is Solid.

Chairman Eppstein has received the following interesting letter from Park Commissioner Strauss, of New York, a member of Tammany, and brother of Mr. Strauss, who was minister to Turker under President Cleveland:

Dear Friend: I have delayed answering your letter because I've been waiting to see what the third ticket would be, if one should be put in the field.

The ticket nominated by the third party is weak, while that put forward by Tammany is strong and will be elected.

There are no dissensions among democrats on the national ticket. Tammany is solid, and there is no sort of disagreement that will endanger the success of Cleveland and Stevenson this fall.

I spoke to Mr. Cleveland recently. He and all of his friends are very sanguine.

Yours truly,
Nathan Strauss.

Parades Come High, but Must Go.

The local republican executive committee has been making desperate efforts ever since the sale of the party congressional nomination in this district to James M. Ashley, to pump up a little enthusiasm for him as a candidate, and with very poor success. His chief power in convention was his money, and some yet was demanded along with heavy and distasteful contributions on republican officeholders, to purchase uniforms and torches for marching clubs in the different wards of the city. The proposed marching clubs failed to materialize. The evil of advancing cash in this case, as in others, carries its own cure. The boys refuse to march without pay, when they know the money is to be had; and they argue that they may as well have some of it. Many of them have even refused to register unless their demands are complied with, in some shape or other. Things had come to such a pass that the Ashley managers were compelled to do something to appease the clamor of the small fry. They finally hit upon the plan of a general demonstration, in which the uniforms, secured by the ward clubs, could be used, and by which it could be made all right with the boys. The plan is to hold a meeting at Memorial hall to-night, where Ashley will deliver his usual self-sufficient speech, assisted by Cumback, of Indiana, who, like Ashley, knows the bitterness of defeat.

"A fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind."

A parade is to be organized under the direction of that distinguished citizen, W. I. Squire. Uniforms and torches will be distributed to any and all who will march and bear them—for a consideration, presumably, as nearly everybody has refused so far to do so. A number of bands have been hired, that they may put some inspiration into those who are induced or impressed to take part, and particularly into the 200 men, most of them decent citizens, who have been chosen willy-nilly, to assist in the placating of the pelf-pullers.

The affair will cost a heap of money, of course—for those uniforms, torches, horses and the other less mentioned expenses—but where the money comes from is immaterial to those for whose sake the meeting and incidental parade is gotten up. That they will be satisfied with so small a share of the "spoils" is not at all likely. One kick having been so successful, they will essay another; and if not fully satisfied then,

Good-bye, J. M. Ashley:
You've got into a snarl;
You acted very rashly
In boasting of your ba'r'l.

Mr. Eppstein is in receipt of a leter from Chairman Harrity, of the national democratic committee, in which the most encouraging news of Cleveland's assured success is given. Mr. Harrity states that the news from New York and all over the country is of the most favorable character.

Joe Casper on Saturday received $5,000 from New York to bet on Cleveland. Those desiring to back Harrison can be accommodated by the genial Joseph.

This evening the Democratic Boys' Marching club of the Eighth ward will have a pole raising and general rally at the corner of Dorr and Twenty-second streets.

Democrats must register on Friday or Saturday in order to vote. Do it.

Dates of meetings for the rest of the campaign will be found at the head of first column, fourth page.

Splendid meetings were held at Elmore and Port Clinton Saturday night. B. F. Ritchie, Barton Smith and F. E. Wright were the speakers.

The democratic committee has received a lot of campaign literature in the Polish language and has plenty in German and English.

Sixth ward democrats held a large and enthusiastic meeting at Ironville on Saturday evening.

Col. S. C. Reynolds, who has just returned from New York, where he has been attending a meeting of the Wabash directors, said to a Bee thisman orning that in the metropolis everything was for Cleveland. There did not seem to be a second opinion, and if even one-half what is said is true, Cleveland will carry New York state by an enormous majority.

The republican Third ward marching club won't be in line to any great extent to-night, that is if the members have any self-respect left. The club asked the republican executive committee for funds to secure headquarters. An old barn up the alley in the rear of the republican headquarters was secured, but the respectable members of the club promptly said "Nix, we are not cattle, even if we do march in Squire's command."

The rally in the Fourth ward Saturday night was a pronounced success. Judge McGahan was the speaker of the evening, and he discussed the issues of the day in a telling manner. Thirty-six new members were admitted and the club is booming. The Fourth will give a good account of itself.

WELL! WELL!! WELL!!!

McKinley Has no Love for Lucas,

And Will Not Attend Our Meeting, See! And Does Not Care Whether Ashley Is Elected or Not, See!

Foraker won't and McKinley dasn't.

Some time ago Jim Ashley asked ex-Gov. Foraker to deliver an address in Toledo in Ashley's behalf.

The genial Joseph politely but positively declined.

But what of it? Sure there was our own Bill McKinley. He would come, and Foraker could go jump on himself.

So William was asked to come, and he answered graciously but gravely that he would be on hand—possibly.

He has been advertised to speak with Ashley at Memorial hall to-night, but now a message comes to Jim Southard, at the last moment, that owing to press of business, etc., the governor cannot possibly be here.

The hope of the seance to-night depends on Carl Flickinger. Flick is all right, and can make as good a speech as Governor McKinley, any way.

It is a desperate struggle the old man is making.

Help, help!

With Apologies To Fisk.

Bet He Will Not Explain.

Calico Charley Foster will try to explain to Wood county republicans, on the 26th of this month, how the present administration got away with the surplus left it by Grover Cleveland and why we are running short of funds notwithstanding the receipt of a higher and more revenue than at any other time in the history of our country? He ought also to tell his audience how he put down the rebellion.—North Baltimore Times.

It Will Be a Great Fall.

The republicans are yet alarmed over this district. They have concluded that the effect of importing McKinley and Foraker and having John Sherman speak in the district did not accomplish anything, so they have billed Hon. Charles Foster for a few speeches in the district, but Humpty-Dumpty, like "all the king's horses and all the king's men," cannot put Johnson together again.—Mansfield Shield.

Will Soon Find Them Out.

Some enthusiastic democrats are talking about finding Ohio this fall in the democratic column. It is hardly to be expected so soon, but you will surely find her there in the course of time. The people of Ohio are not boodle and gang lovers, and monopoly and trust sympathizers, but rather honest and thrifty citizens, and you may confidently expect to see them in the democratic column as soon as they fully realize where republican ideas really tend.—Cincinnati Southwest.

HOW IS THIS, JIM?

Twenty Thousand Dollars For the Toledo Harbor.

Mr. Ashley Secured During Ten Years in Congress.

Query—What Would He Do for Toledo Harbor Now, When He Has Frankfort to Improve?

Will Mr. Ashley tell his Memorial hall audience to-night how much money he secured for the Toledo harbor during his 10 years in congress?

Of course, he won't. Jim Ashley was working not for Toledo and her interests, but for Jim Ashley while he was in congress.

The Bee will answer the question. Mr. Ashley was the great "I am" in congress the friend of Lincoln and the power behind the throne.

How was it then that he secured out $20,000 all told for the Toledo harbor during his 10 years in congress?

Two thousand a year.

Mr. Ashley was in congress from this district from 1858 to 1868, and herewith are the official figures of all appropriations made for this harbor. Note how much is credited to Ashley:

June 23, 1866	$ 20,000
July 11, 1870	50,000
March 3, 1871	50,000
June 10, 1872	15,000
March 3, 1873	100,000
June 23, 1874	75,000
March 3, 1875	75,000
August 14, 1876	60,000
June 18, 1878	50,000
March 3, 1879	20,000
June 14, 1880	30,000
March 3, 1881	40,000
August 2, 1882	50,000
July 5, 1884	20,000
Survey straight channel	25,000
August 5, 1886	112,500
July 31, 1888	150,000
Old channel	5,000
September 19, 1890	200,000
Old channel	5,000
July 13, 1892	200,000
Total	$1,352,000

It is but fair to ask Mr. Ashley how he can secure a continuation of the appropriations for the Toledo harbor if he has another harbor in Michigan to construct and improve?

It will be a sorry day for the straight channel should Mr. James M. Ashley be returned to congress.

ROCK-RIBBED FULTON

May Go Democratic on This Occasion.

Touville Read Out of the Party With Brailey.

Grand Fiasco at a Pole Raising at Which Touville Would Have Been Egged Had He Appeared.

Wynemeg, Fulton Co., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The republicans of rock-ribbed Fulton are on the rocks, figuratively speaking, and as a result the majority of the democratic county ticket will be elected. W. H. Crominger, for auditor, will be elected by 500 majority over Touville, who betrayed Brigham and sold out to Ashley in the congressional convention.

James McCarn and F. I. Isabell, the democratic nominees for sheriff and probate judge respectively, will also be elected by handsome majorities, while Kale for county commissioner and Everett for county surveyor have harder rows to hoe, but are making good fights.

Byron Ritchie will run immense here, not, perhaps, because the republicans like him, but because they hate Ashley and his methods, but above and over all because they desire to lay Touville and Brailey, who are openly denounced as traitors.

The feeling that exists against Touville was illustrated by an incident at this place Thursday. There was to be a great republican rally and pole raising. Touville was to have been the orator of the day, but learning that he would be rotten-egged out of town had he put in an appearance, he naturally stayed away.

This part of the program would have been easily rectified, but one of Touville's henchmen, Val Winslow, had charge of the pole, and he failed to show up with the splicing irons and so there was no Touville, no Winslow and no pole raising. Yes there were, too. Some anti-Touville republican started in and put up a little 30-foot affair the same day.

Touville is a dead duck at the "Corners," as indeed he is all over the county.

As a result of this happy state of affairs, Ashley will not get 200 majority in this county, if he gets that.

If you can hold Ashley down to 1,000 majority in Lucas, Ritchie will be elected beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

The democrats up here are on the hustle as they never were before. Charles E. Werden, president of the Desota Breeding company, and delegate to the democratic convention at Chicago, is out working like a beaver, as are many others. Just after his return from Chicago Mr. Werden raised a handsome 95-foot hickory pole with a 22-foot flag on his farm a mile from here.

This is the kind of democracy we have up in old Fulton, and if we don't give a good account of ourselves this trip, it will be singular.

Meeting of the Directors this Morning.

The Works to be Enlarged and Improved—Resignation of Supt. Barringer.

This morning the directors of the Turnbull Wagon company held an important meeting at the office of Mr. S. C. Schenck, Summit street.

President T. S. Merrill presided, and after the transaction of general routine business the resignation of Superintendent Barringer was received and read. Mr. Barringer, who resigns on account of ill health, is one of the company's oldest and most valued employes.

The enlargement of the plant was discussed. It was considered too late in the year to undertake any extensive improvements, but the works will be improved and enlarged next season.

Mr. Fred B. Shoemaker, one of the directors, said to a Bee this morning that Treasurer Wood's report showed such a demand for the product of the works that an enlargement was an absolute necessity.

The works is doing a rushing business, and the company continues to pile up the customary dividends.

TOLEDO AND TOLEDOANS.

Ashley a Traitor.

It is stated that while J. M. Ashley was a democrat he once said that any man who voted the republican ticket was a traitor. He is, therefore, a traitor upon his own authority.—North Baltimore Post.

Afraid of the Truth.

Ashley refuses a joint debate with Byron Ritchie. The old money bags and railroad wrecker can't stand the eloquent and able young democrat, Ritchie, who would knock his tariff robbery and his turn coat politics into flinders.—Ottawa County Exponent.

A Wholesome Truth.

The democrats of the Toledo district nominated the brilliant Byron F. Ritchie for congress. He is making a red-hot canvass, and General James M. Ashley, the republican candidate, will find it very sultry in the district before the election is over.—Circleville Democrat and Watchmen.

Will Drop Into the Seat.

Byron Ritchie, the son of his pa, is in town looking for a place to drop after election day.—Tribune.

Don't be alarmed, neighbor, Byron will drop into a congressional seat after the election, and don't you forget it.—Wood County Democrat.

Byron Will Win.

Gov. Ashley's meetings as a rule are very slim. At Bowling Green last Saturday there was only the usual number of people in town, and while the opera house was only moderately filled, many ladies were in the audience. Ashley is not a drawing card this year. Byron will beat him.—Wood County Democrat.

Here Is a Nailer.

A vote for Byron Ritchie is for an honest man in touch and sympathy with the people. Ashley is a many times millionaire who has sweat his wealth from his toiling laborers of the Ann Arbor road. His life is mostly spent in New York with the kings of wealth and he knows no poor man only when he wants his vote.—Ottawa County Exponent.

Sorry to Lose Him.

A. Stuart, for many years a resident of Cincinnati and at one time manager of the Thomson-Houston company, of Cincinnati, has purchased, with F. P. Chapin, the business manager of the Toledo Bee, the controlling interest in that paper. He is the president of the company under the new organization, and will shortly remove with is family to Toledo. He takes with him the best wishes of a large circle of friends, who wish him success in the journalistic field.—Cincinnati Post.

Our Newspapers.

Toledo newspapers seem to have an acknowledged commercial value, and the owners thereof are as open for a trade as the traditional ancient horse jockey. There have been two or three sales of the Morning Commercial and Evening Bee offices. The latest is that of the Sunday Journal. E. J. Tippett having sold his interest to C. C. Packard. It is rumored that P. C. Hudson, the democratic candidate for common pleas judge, had also taken an interest with Mr. Packard.—Fremont Journal.

A Poke at Griffin.

It is a noticeable fact that not one member of the general assembly who exercised his genius in carving out a congress district for himself, at the late session, succeeded in getting a nomination. Griffin of Toledo was the last to fall, and he helped to put Montgomery county into a democratic district when it was easier to vote her into a close republican district. That's the reason, among others, that he has few friends in the Third district. He got what he deserved from his own constituents.—Dayton Journal, Rep.

What High Tariff Has Done.

Thomas A. Taylor, a leading republican of Toledo and proprietor of one of the largest flouring mills in the state has come out for Cleveland. He says: "High tariff has paralyzed the milling business."—Troy Democrat.

Thomas A. Taylor, the great Toledo miller, is out in a card stating that he cannot support Harrison, all because of the McKinley bill, which is destroying the milling industries by shutting the markets of the world against American millers.—Georgetown Democrat.

The dirtiest thing in modern politics is the wardheeler; the young blood who wears good clothes, seldom paid for; who struts about usually with a cane; who is present at every meeting where there is to be a distribution of money for some rascally political end, and who wins his way into the good graces of a sufficient number of thoughtless citizens to secure his election to a responsible office.

Toledo has just cause to abhor the wardheeler in politics. Some of her councilmen have been convicted of asking for a bribe, and one, at least, has confessed that he was a "boodler."

Why is it that people must be subjected to almost every inconvenience because a few young gamblers and bribe-takers must secure a living without work, is hard to determine.

There is no use in disguising the fact that city and village politics are getting to be rotten to the core, and it is high time that every thoughtful citizen should begin to weigh well the reasons for casting his vote this way or that. It is time that democrats, republicans, prohibitionists, and even the "alliance" should hunt honest men for local offices rather than politicial squirts who are to be rewarded for what is ridiculously considered "party adherence." To the dogs with such politics if they lead us to vote for boodlers!—Perrysburg Journal.

Calm Statement of the Situation.

The voters of the Ninth congressional district, on the 8th day of November next, will be called upon to perform a particularly important duty aside from voting for presidential electors. The republicans have for their candiate for congress, James M. Ashley, a man who for years has been closely identified with the capitalists of Wall street, a man who is acknowledged a multi-millionaire, a man whose actual residence is New York city though nominally claimed for Toledo, a man who is in every sense a railroad magnet even to the extent of being president of the Ann Arbor road, a man whose every act in the way of dealing with employes has proven himself the enemy of the common people—such is the unquestionable record of one candidate for this important office. On the other hand, the democrats have named a man for the position of whom it can be truly said: that if elected, his time, labors and best efforts wil be devoted to the interests of his constituents, a man who can be counted as one of the people with interests akin to the wants and needs of the people, a man whose time will not

STEALING A CROWN.

Thomas Blood, the hero—if we may so far abuse the word—of the adventure about to be related, was the son of an Irish blacksmith, who, by strict attention to business, had been enabled to bestow on his children an education considerably above what was then deemed suitable to their station in life.

On the breaking out of the civil wars, young Blood espoused the cause of the parliament, and soon rose to the rank of colonel. As a reward for his services, Cromwell assigned him a handsome estate in Ireland, of which he remained in quiet possession till after the restoration in 1660, when the new government, not recognizing the protector's grant, suddenly divested Blood of his property and reduced him to absolute want.

After various adventures in Ireland, Scotland and Holland, Blood made his appearance in England under the assumed name of Ayliffe, and passed for a physician.

In the following year Blood conceived the design of stealing the crown of England. The regalia were deposited in the Tower in the care of an aged and trusty keeper named Edwards ,into whose confidence Blood adopted a singular method of ingratiating himself. Disguising himself as a parson, and taking with him a woman whom he represented as his wife, he went to the Tower and expressed a desire to see the regalia. As applications of this nature were nothing uncommon, Edwards admitted the visitors without hesitation. After their curiosity had been gratified, and as they were about taking their leave, the lady was taken suddenly ill, whereupon she and her companion were conducted to the keeper's room, where the psuedo parson's wife was treated with much kindness by Mr. Edwards and his family, until her strength was sufficiently recovered to enable her to take her departure, which she did with profuse acknowledgements.

A few days afterward the parson returned with half a dozen pairs of gloves as a present to Mrs. Edwards in recognition of her courtesy. The intimacy thus commenced Blood lost no opportunity of cultivating, and the result was that he grew rapidly in the esteem and confidence of his new friends. At length he ventured to propose a match between their daughter and a pretended nephew of his, of whose merits he spoke in the highest commendation, and whom he represented to be the owner of a landed estate of three hundred a year. The proposition was favorably entertained, and, at Blood's suggestion a day was fixed on which he should bring his kinsman to be introduced to the young lady.

Accordingly, on the morning of the 9th of May, 1671, at the hour appointed for the interview, Parson Blood, with three companions, all armed with rapier blades in their canes, and each having a dagger and brace of pistols concealed on his person, presented himself at the apartment of Edwards. One of the strangers was introduced as the nephew of Blood, who stated that the others were friends who had merely come to look at the regalia, and expressed a desire that their wishes should be first attended to, that they might be at liberty to return.

Edwards at once conducted the party to the rooms in which the jewels were kept; but no sooner had he closed the door, according to custom, than he was violently set upon by the four men, by whom he fas instantly bound and gagged. They further threatened him with instant death, if he made the lightest noise. He persisted, however, in his efforts to give the alarm, till they quieted him by a blow on the head with a mallet. The robbers, now believing him dead—an impression which Edwards on recovering his senses, was careful not to remove—they at once proceeded to business. Blood seized the crown, which he concealed beneath his cloak; one of his companions put the orb in his pocket, while another commenced filing a scepter in two, for the convenience of hiding it in a bag.

At this moment a son of Mr. Edwards, who had just arrived from Flanders, in company with Capt. Beckham, a friend of his, entered the adjoining court. Hearing the sound of approaching footsteps, Blood and his companions immediately decamped with the crown and orb, leaving the scepter, which there had not been time to file, behind them. As soon as they had left the room, Edwards, who had managed to get rid of the gag, shouted "Treason!" and "Murder!" at the top of his voice; and his daughter running to his assistance, and learning what had occurred, rushed immediately into the court, and gave the alarm that the crown had been stolen.

The robbers reached the draw-bridge without interruption. There the warder attempted to stop them; but Blood discharging a pistol at him, the man, though unhurt, dropped apparently lifeless, and thus left the passage undisputed. They had succeeded in clearing the remaining gates and reaching the wharf, when they were overtaken by Capt. Beckham. Blood fired his second pistol at the captain's head without effect, but the latter was too good a soldier to fall without being shot, and caught hold of Blood, who struggled fiercely, not only to get loose, but to retain his prize. As he beheld the crown wrenched from his grasp, he is said to have exclaimed: "At all events, it was a noble attempt—it was for a crown!"

By this time assistance had arrived, and Blood and his associates were speedily secured. Every one expected to see a crime considered as bordering on sacrilege, followed by the most terrible retribution. But the sequel was scarcely less extraordinary than the attempt.

Charles insisted on being present at the examination of the prisoners; and Blood, whose cunning seems never to have deserted him, and who appears to have thoroughly comprehended the character of the "merrie monarch," not only boldly acknowledged himself the leader of the late attack on the duke of Ormond, but declared that he had lain in wait, not long before, to kill the king, at whose royal person he had even gone so far as to aim his carbine, when some mysterious awe, inspired by the sacredness of majesty, had stayed his hand. He further asserted that he was but one of a band composed of hundreds, bound by a solemn oath to avenge each other's death, and that in the event of any harm befalling him or his companions, not only the king, but all his ministers, would be daily exposed to the danger of assassination.

This adroit mixture of flattery and bravado had the desired effect. Charles not only extended a full pardon to Blood and his accomplices, but gave him a grant of land in Ireland. He also dispatched Lord Arlington to the duke of Ormond, to convey to the latter his wish that he should take no steps against Blood for the assault upon himself. As Arlington was proceeding to explain the king's reason, the duke cut him short with the answer, "His majesty's command is the only reason that can be given—pray dispense with the others."

ALUMINIUM FOR SOLDIERS.

Many Articles of Equipment Can Be Made of It to Advantage.

Aluminium has been so successfully experimented with for articles hitherto made of steel and other metals for the use of soldiers that it promises to take the place of steel in army equipments to a great extent. Lieut. W. C. Brown, of the First cavalry, stationed at Denver, has sent to the war department samples of a sabre belt plate, a fork, spoon, canteen, cartridge belt plate, meat can, blanket straps, etc., made of this metal. There is not only a saving in weight in the accoutrements of the infantry soldier and on the horse equipments of the cavalry of a pound or more, but aluminium possesses a resistance to corrosion, and articles made from it will seldom require any cleaning other than occasionally to be wiped off with a moist cloth.

Lieut. Brown also declares that aluminium at $1.50 a pound in the manufactured shape, the saber belt and infantry cartridge belt plates can actually be furnished for less than they are now supplied in brass by the war department. This is largely due to the fact that the specific gravity of aluminium is less than one-third that of brass. The canteen made of this material will never rust and will not only be more durable than the tin one, but the water in it will remain pure instead of being contaminated with rust, as is now frequently the case. The saber belt plate and the curb bit have both been tested by actual service. Lieut. Brown has also experimented with an alloy of aluminium with titanium and says it has stiffness and resistance enough to justify the belief that it would be an excellent substitute for steel in the manufacture of saber and bayonet scabbards and many like articles of equipment, with a saving of 50 per cent. in the weight of many of such things.

Another use of aluminium is for horseshoes. It has been used successfully in a Finnish dragoon regiment. Several horses were shod on one fore and one hind foot with aluminium shoes and on the other feet with the ordinary iron shoes. After six weeks' wear it was found that the former had served much better than the iron shoes, and not one of them had broken. The horse had all the time been workworking on a hard and stony road.—New York Tribune.

When a doctor considers it necessary to prescribe sarsaparilla, he simply orders a bottle of Ayer's, knowing full well that he will obtain thereby a surer and purer preparation than any other which the drug store can furnish. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the Superior Medicine.

THE ROSE.

History Shows That It Has Always Been a Favorite Among Flowers.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans revelled in roses; they were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers, after the battle of Cirrha, refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiae the whole surface of Lucrine Lake was strewn with the flowers.

Nero at his banqueting showered rosewater upon his guests from an opening in the ceiling, and when honoring the house of a noble with his presence the host was compelled to have his fountains playing rosewater. In the repast itself, roses found place in the form of a rose pudding.

The Sybarites slept on beds stuffed with rose leaves; the tyrant Dionysius had his couch filled with them; Venus would travel with a garland on his head and round his neck, and over his litter he had a thin net with rosa leaves intertwined. Antiochus luxuriated upon a bed of blooms even in winter days and nights, and when Cleopatra entertained Antony she had roses covering the floor to the depth, it is said, of an ell.

We are told that Heliogabalus supplied so many at one of his banquets that several of his guests were suffocated in the endeavor to extricate themselves from the abundance—victims of a surfeit of sweet odors.

Doubtless the immoderate use of roses by the ancients led in after days to their being relegated to their proper sphere in the garden; for although we have had the wars of the roses in our modern times, the flowers were only plucked as a symbol. First and last, the rose has been the theme of countless poems; there is no poet worthy of the name who has not consecrated it in verse.

When a party has nothing to go on it can make a point of almost anything. The Socialist Labor party in Massachusetts is nothing if not gallant. Its list of electors is headed by the name of a woman, Martha Moore Avery.

Sixty-five years ago the mails between Green Bay and Chicago were carried in a bag swung over the shoulder of Alexander Campbell who footed the entire distance. The old man, who is now 90 years old, is trying to walk over his old route.

The man who once had the honor of lending Edgar Allen Poe the sum of 50 cents is now basking in the sunshine of the fame of such a financial transaction. He is a Kansas statesman and in ordinary life is known as Col. Jacob Child.

The university of Michigan numbers among its students two young Chinese girls, Mary Stone and Ada Kahn, whose homes are in the interior of the flowery kingdom. For the convenience of their American friends they have exchanged their own names for the ones above mentioned.

The Kalmucks have an original method of treating cholera. Whenever one of them is attacked by the epidemic he mounts a horse and gallops as long as he has strength to stay on the animal's back. A Mosco wjournalist tried this remedy recently and is said to have found it effectual.

Physical Director Stagg—that's what they call him—has decided that the students in the Chicago university shall kick football three times a week for exercise—at least the young men. The young ladies walk an hour and take 15 minutes exercise in the gymnasium.

In this country we have one horse for every 12 persons and only an average of four hours of daily sunshine in which to ride or walk. A celebrated aeronaut asserts, after patient investigation, that the ninth day of the moon is the most rainy of the wohle 28, and 4 o'clock in the afternoon the rainiest hour of the day.

Statistics recently compiled in London show that the number of cabs, both four wheeled and hansom cabs, is diminishing. This is probably due to the extension of street car routes and democratic ideas. During the last 12 months there were 3,089 four-wheeled cabs licensed, as against 3,921 the year previous.

Next to gambling, the Eskimo men like to wrestle. The usual way of doing this is a test rather of strength than skill. The wrestlers sit down on the floor, or in any convenient place, side by side and facing in opposite directions, say with their right elbows touching. Then they lock arms, and each strives to straighten out the other's arm.

It was lately quoted in British shipping circles as a proof of the depreciation affecting the shipping trade that a splendid four-mast iron bark of 2,000 tons register, owned on the Clyde, came into port from Australia in ballast, was unable to get a cargo and sailed back for the antipodes again with the same ballast she brought with her.

The Chinese superstition about lucky and unlucky colors is one that foreign merchants must observe when they attempt to sell wares in China. The use of black paper as a wrapper for needles has militated against their sale in China. Blue must be specially avoided on wrappers of goods intended for the Chinese market, while red is auspicious.

The Scandinavian lady cyclists continue to distinguish themselves. The famous Danish lady rider, Froken Johanne Jorgensen, has recently made records which approach those set by the best English gentlemen riders. In Sweden Froken Annie Olsson has of late done great things on the cycle, and numerous other Swedish ladies have during the present summer adopted this delightful and health-giving pastime.

The following item is given for what it is worth: Mrs. Rorer gave New England a shock the other day while lecturing at the Health and Food exhibition in New Haven by prophesying dire disaster as a result of indulgence in "hashed brown potatoes." She had visited insane asylums, she said, and found that many of the inmates had been addicted to the use of potatoes fried after boiling. Ergo, potatoes cooked in this way, appear to produce insanity.

Queen Marguerite of Italy recently arrived in a town where great preparations had been made to do her honor, and, being offered some lunch, declined it and said that all she needed was a glass of water. The water being brought, she drank it, and was about to take her handkerchief from her pocket in order to wipe her lips when the mayor, misinterpreting her action, bowed respectfully and said: "Your majesty need not trouble yourself. I can assure you that the lunch is all paid for."

Mrs. S. L. Ballentine, of Port Huron, Mich., has just received a patent for a device to secure glass in the doors of stoves and furnaces. The process of baking in the oven can be watched through the glass, and there is a saving of fuel, since frequent opening of the doors will be needless, and the glass will allow the heat to leave the oven less rapidly than iron. A Canadian patent will also be secured for the device. Many of the larger stove companies have already begun to negotiate for the patent.

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

AS SEEN IN CHICAGO.

Democrats See Nothing But Victory in the Air.

Grover Cleveland Has a Walk in New York.

The People's Party a Dreaded Specter to the Party of Trusts and Spoils.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 24.—A correspondent talked here with governors of all the disputed states, with United States senators, congressmen, members of the legislature and politicians of high and low degree, with a view of getting an idea as to the political drift.

He found as a general thing that the democrats are much more confident and self-assertive than the republicans. Some one has said that this is a natural democratic condition, but in the present instance there are probably good reasons for it.

The republicans are troubled by the specter of the people's party in the west and northwest to such an extent that they confess it renders the situation doubtful. For instance, Gov. Merriam said he was afraid they (the republicans) would lose four votes in Minnesota, Gov. Markham confessed that California was doubtful, John M. Thurston says the same of Nevada, all are troubled over Nebraska, North Dakota and Montana, while the democrats, on the other hand, are making almost wild claims of their strength in Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. It is no lack of party enthusiasm or loyalty that makes a republican in view of the great vote polled by the populists two years ago, stop now to consider what may be done this year, and to answer cautiously.

The fact that he hesitates at all about states that have given reliable and immense republican majorities is in itself enough to make a democrat cheerful, and perhaps account for much of the buoyancy prevalent. This condition of affairs in itself rather gives the democrats "the edge" on their opponents, and makes their enthusiasm run high.

There is a tendency on all sides to concede that New York is going democratic. Gov. Flower, who has proved an immense favorite here, has had a good deal to do with creating this sentiment. He has been telling everybody and telling them loudly and long, that Cleveland would carry New York by 50,000. He said:

"Under existing conditions it is impossible for New York to do anything but go democratic. There is not one single impediment to democratic success, and I firmly believe the Cleveland and Stevenson electors are going to have 40,000 or 50,000 majority. I say this not at random, but based on my knowledge and experience in New York politics."

Talk like this from a man like Gov. Flower has its effect. Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, on the contrary, talks hopefully of New York for the republicans, and says he believes they will carry it. He does not, however, like Gov. Flower, give figures or claim a large majority.

Gov. E. B. Winans, of Michigan, George H. Barbour, a Detroit manufacturer, and Peter H. White, "The Sweet Story Letter of Marquette," are among the men talked to about Michigan. They are democrats, and since the decision on the Miner law they have jumped from five to seven electors which they now claim in that state. Republicans concede four. The democrats will really get about five.

Gov. Peck says that Wisconsin is absolutely safe, sound and sure for the democrats, and John H. Knight, of Ashland, Wis., says the same, as does Gen. Bragg. There are plenty of republicans to violently combat this assertion, and with Senator Sawyer running for governor in that state, with his immense wealth and influence to back him, and a Lutheran running with him for lieutenant governor to attract back that vote I do not see how the state can go democratic.

Gov. Joseph K. Toole, of Montana, talks quite confidently of democratic success in that state, and no one is here to combat his theories. He fooled the republicans by being elected in 1889, and may have a surprise in store for them again, as the people's party may attract just enough votes to let him.

Gov. Horace Boies talks of Iowa in as confident a tone as Henry Watterson would talk of Kentucky. He thinks it is democratic. His neighbor, Gov. Boyd, of Nebraska, told me Gov. Boies was mistaken, and that Iowa would go republican. Gov. Boyd declared a populist-democratic fusion would win in Nebraska, however.

The democrats claim the fusion will win in North Dakota; but Republican Governor Burke says there is a mistake about it.

Gov. Bulkeley, the present executive of Connecticut, and ex-Gov. Waller, though at the antipodes in politics, agree that their state is doubtful. Gov. Bulkely thinks that the tariff may cause the tobacco growers and the manufacturers to give the state to the republicans, possibly, at least he hopes so, and Gov. Waller thinks the people, who are taxed to death, will assert themselves, and give six electoral votes to Cleveland.

The sentiment of the great crowd here is that Indiana is extremely doubtful. Gov. Chase says it is not, and that it will give him and the Harrison electors eight or ten thousand plurality.

Very wise heads on both sides, on the contrary, say it is hard to figure out the Indiana situation in the peculiar state of affairs known to exist there.

EXPERIENCE OF AN EX-CHAMPION.

Athletes and men who take ordinary outdoor exercise such as walking, running, bicycle riding, jumping, swimming, tennis, etc., are often the subjects of acute troubles. The experience of an ex-champion walker will be of interest to all who are afflicted. Harry Brooks writes:

"No. 224 East 19th St.,
New York, April 2, 1886.

"Numerous statements relative to the merits of different plasters having been brought to my attention, I take this opportunity to state that I have used Allcock's Porous Plasters for over 20 years and prefer them to any other kind. I would furthermore state that I was very sick with catarrh of the kidneys, and attribute my recovery entirely to Allcock's Porous Plasters."

PRINTERS TO STRIKE.

New York, Oct. 24.—A special to the World from Boston says that Typographical Union, No. 13, voted by a heavy majority yesterday to strike on the Advertiser, Record and Journal offices, in case the scale is not conceded by 7 o'clock to-night. This will affect about 250 compositors and in all probability the pressmen and stereotypers will also go out.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Cincinnati, Oct. 24.—Dr. J. C. Gaskins, a physician of Amelia, attempted to murder his wife and child last Saturday night, while intoxicated. A crowd of 500 villagers attempted to catch him, but he eluded them and only escaped lynching by being captured by the sheriff and lodged in jail at Batavia. Mrs. Gaskins was badly injured and is in a critical condition.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Scottsville, Ky., Oct. 24.—Bud Ritchey, a wealthy stock owner, was assassinated near here Saturday evening. He was driving along the road with his wife and baby, when some one concealed behind a tree shot him. Mrs. Ritchey says it was Wm. Moore, a neighbor, with whom Ritchey had had trouble.

BARNS BURNED.

Wapakoneta, Oct. 24.—(Special)—Three barns, in the second ward, belonging to August Merkle, Peter Heitle and Christ Hoegner were totally destroyed by fire this morning with all their contents.

The barns stood close together, but all burned down at once. Incendiarism is supposed. Loss $1,500, with slight insurance.

KILLED AT A CROSSING.

Sad Accident to Two People at Wauseon.

Wauseon, O., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—Three tracks now cross our main thoroughfare, and Saturday evening one life and possibly two paid the penalty of the gross carelessness on both town and railroad company's part in not alleviating the danger. George Andrews, aged 45 years, the section boss here for over 20 years, and Adam Bell, aged 19 years, night clerk at hotel Eager, waited for a west-bound freight to pass and stepped on the north track as soon as the first train was by only to be caught by an east-bound freight and hurled through the air.

Andrews' neck was broken. Bell's skull was fractured, his leg broken and other wise horribly cut up, but may live.

Several others barely escaped the same death trap.

At the cost of many human lives from time to time our village has been awakened to the great danger in their midst, and this accident may result in gates or a reasonable rate of speed at our crossings.

HOSS AND HOSS.

The Plot Briefly and a Word About Attractions

At the Theaters This Week—The Midnight Alarm—Many Good Things at the Wonderland.

Those two immensely popular comedians, Charlie Reed and William Collier, will make their joint appearance in the new farce-drama, "Hoss and Hoss," at Wheeler's to-morrow evening. Unlike most pieces of this class, "Hoss and Hoss" has something of a plot. A respectable old country judge, William Hoss, has in his younger days been involved in a pretty actress episode, which his son Bertie discovers through finding an old and compromising letter. This he uses to extort permission from the judge to introduce into the house some young friends of his own of the same character, and also to induce the judge to leave his country home and reside in the city. Through this means there is assembled a company of the liveliest kind, prominent among whom is a young New York lawyer, Charlie Hoss, to the horror of the judge and his wife. The first act is laid at the judge's country house in Saugerties, New York, and the second in his court-room during a trial of a theatrical company, and the third in a New York restaurant, which the judge has been induced to buy in partnership with Lawyer Charlie Hoss, and which is being run under the name of "Cafe Hoss and Hoss." The trials and tribulations of the judge and the lawyer who, owing to a strike among the employes, are compelled to become cook and head-waiter respectively, form the basis of the fun in the last act. Plenty of bright songs, clever dancing, beautiful costumes and pretty young ladies are promised. In the cast is Miss Louise Allen, the handsome brunette who created a furor last season as the Kangaroo Girl in "Dr. Bill," Miss Marie Celeste, Adele Farrington, Miss Helen Reimer, Miss Helena Collier, Belle Muni, Miss May Jordan, Arthur Moulton, Jas. B. Gentry, Daniel Baker, M. L. Heckert, J. C. Cheviot, the quartet, Daniel Brasl and Joseph Maguire.

At the People's.

For thrilling interest, enthusiastic dialogue, startling situations and happy denouement, The Midnight Alarm is decidedly "in it," and the lover of the heroic and the melodramic may go to the People's and revel in the sensational, and that, too, of a quality which one can witness without tiring.

The Midnight Alarm is a play that was a great success last season, but this year it appears in an embellished version of additional merit and attractive powers. Mr. Leander Richardson's touching up of the work has added lustre, pathos and humor to the dialogue, and in the scenic arrangement he has made almost wonderful improvement. Mr. A. Y. Pearson, the manager and proprietor, has spared no expense to carry out Mr. Richardson's magnificent scenic plot, and in the third and fourth acts it reaches a climax that carries the audience by storm.

Among the best effects of the play may be mentioned the East river docks, the peculiar "living clock," railroad drawbridge at Shark run, the flight of the fast express, No. 6 engine house in New York, and the run of the steamer in the midst of a fierce storm. All these mechanical effects are most perfect and thoroughly realistic.

The play combines all the striking situations that have made many a stage picture of city life a success.

At the Wonderland.

At the Wonderland this week Admiral Dot and his charming little wife hold daily receptions. They are on their wedding tour.

There will be numerous attractions in the musee and theater, including Clint Williams and his educated bear, the Martin sisters, two charming Albinos, Walter Holt, the one-man band, Thompson's miniature skating rink, Murphy & Mack comedians, Cheveriel, Dixon Bros., Sigfried, and many others.

BROKE HIS HEALTH.

A Minister Who Could Not Stand the Charges.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 24.—Rev. Dr. Wellington Loucke, recently pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has been taken to the hospital, completely broken down with nervous prostration.

His illness is the outcome of a plot, of which a woman who kept a cottage at Atlantic City, made the preacher a victim.

She made sensational charges against him, but the presbytery cleared him upon investigation.

The circumstances so worked upon his mind, however, that he became ill, and his friends are now very much alarmed for him.

WHITEHOUSE NOTES.

Whitehouse, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Mrs. Henry Bradley, who was so dangerously sick for the past four weeks, is improving under the care of Dr. E. Bradley.

Mesdames Engelhardt, Bucher and Schmid were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Hatch at Maumee Friday.

Miss Adalaide Engelhardt is in Maumee attending school.

Miss Cora Cowling was in Toledo last week.

The Misses Mamie and Louise Pray are in Toledo spending a few days with friends.

Mrs. Wm. Demuth and Mrs. Charley Risher were visiting with Mrs. C. M. King one day last week.

Mrs. B. Sly was in Swanton Tuesday to attend the funeral of her grandchild.

DESHLER NOTES.

Deshler, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—John Gregg and family have moved to Toledo.

Miss Lulu Brown, of Jennings, La., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Will Gard.

A pleasant informal musicale was given at the residence of Will Gard Saturday evening.

Bronchitis yields at once to the healing influence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

NEWS FROM NICARAGUA

The Cabinet of the President Not Talkative.

Gossip From a Far-Away Land to the South.

Habits and Characteristics of the People Who Are Attracting So Much Attention.

Cincinnati, Oct. 24.—E. H. Wells, writing to the Cincinnati Post under date of Managua, Nicaragua, September 9, says:

Through the courtesy of Hon. Richard C. Shannon, the resident United States minister, I was presented to President Sacasa last Friday at the National Palace.

Mr. Shannon had previously notified the president that an American newspaper writer had arrived in the capital and desired to make the acquaintance of the executive. Word was accordingly received that on Friday afternoon the president would be at leisure between the hours of 4 and 5 p. m., to accord an audience.

At the time appointed the minister and myself were driven to the palace and alighted at the main entrance, which opened directly upon the street. The building itself is not imposing, being constructed of stone and two stories in height, long and narrow, with a small court inside. Soldiers, acting as sentries, patrolled every avenue of approach, and even compelled pedestrians to keep off the sidewalks in the vicinity of the palace and walk in the middle of the street.

Guards were especially numerous in the president's private rooms. It was plainly evident that no precautions were spared to keep assassins from lurking about the premises.

Passing up the main corridor about 100 feet we reached an iron gate opening into a small court. The guards stationed here knew the American minister and silently saluted as we passed them.

Turning to the left we entered an open doorway leading into a finely-furnished apartment about 40 by 60 feet in dimensions, which proved to be the reception hall. The floor was neatly carpeted, a noticeable feature, as there are few carpets in Central America, and no others in Nicaragua except the one in this room.

On the walls hung artistic pictures representing various subjects, but the most prominent in size and interest was a large painting containing the portraits of all of the Nicaraguan presidents down to Sacasa's time.

As we stepped into the reception hall an officer in waiting saluted and motioned us to take seats in chairs placed opposite the end of a large writing desk. These chairs were part of a straight row of six. Opposite them and about eight feet distant was another unswerving row of equal length, which I noticed were filled by six old men in civilian attire.

"These are the cabinet ministers," remarked Shannon aside. "The president will appear within a minute."

Scarcely were we seated when from a door in the far end of the room President Sacasa entered and, walking briskly down the aisle between the row of chairs, greeted the American minister with a peculiar grace born of Spanish antecedents and a French education.

Then I was introduced, and in turn received a gracious recognition, the president making kindly remarks in Spanish, which were interpreted to me by Mr. Shannon.

Every person in the room had arisen when the president entered, but now at a sign from him, each took his seat.

In the general conversation which ensued the president directed his remarks to Mr. Shannon and myself, and scarcely noticed the ministers of education, war, finance and general responsibility, none of whom uttered a word, but sat mutely in their chairs, presumably listening to the president's remarks. They had not been granted an introduction to the visitor.

It was difficult for me to get the president down to the business of a regular interview on political or canal subjects, owing to his Spanish-American dexterity in side-tracking the questions and burying them out of sight under a mound of pleasant sentences and polite phrases. He was evidently a born diplomat.

He assured me that he was delighted to have the opportunity of meeting an American newspaper man, and declared his belief that the press was the fourth great power of the United States, President Harrison being the first. I was unable to understand where the second and third powers of America came in, but did not press the question.

"What do you think of the prospects for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal?" I finally asked.

"Ah! The building of the canal will be the making of Nicaragua!" he exclaimed. "The shackles which have so long held our country bound hand and foot, will be broken. Prosperity will then smile upon the land and everybody will rejoice. I am fully satisfied with the outlook. The present canal company in charge of construction will undoubtedly push the work to early completion. I am especially glad that the United States and Nicaragua are on such a friendly footing, and I earnestly desire to maintain and increase these friendly relations.

"By every means in my power I have tried to evince the warmth of my regard for the United States. Lately a new Nicaraguan city was established near the Atlantic end of the canal line, and I named it America in honor of your people."

"What do you think of the comparative value to Nicaragua of the canal and of the proposed Intercontinental railway?" I queried.

"Well," answered the president, with a smile, "you know that Nicaragua is a comparatively young country and both would be of inestimable benefit to it. We should be glad to have the railway also."

Our conversation was brought to an abrupt end by the sudden and imperative ringing of a small bell on the president's desk, which I instantly recognized as the metallic voice of a telephone. Sure enough there stood one of the familiar fones on the table erected upon four legs and evidently imported from some hello factory in the United States.

Madame Sacasa proved to be at the other end of the line in Leon, 60 miles away, and she demanded immediate attention. Her conversation with the president occupied fully 10 minutes, and when it finally ended the latter turned to a page in waiting and directed refreshments to be brought. Excellent cigars of Cuban manufacture and a peculiar native drink were served, and then came the formality of leave taking.

First the president arose, then the American minister, myself and the Nicaraguan ministers. Diplomat Shannon thereupon walked up to Sacasa with an urbane smile, and, placing his arms affectionately around the latter, dropped complimentary phrases into his great ear, meanwhile patting him on the back in an approving fashion.

My own acquaintance with the president was of such recent origin that I decided patting him would hardly be justified, so I extended my right hand and tendered him a square American handshake, which was the best I could do under the circumstances. Handshaking is not a fine art in Nicaragua, nor does the man of most eminent position necessarily offer his hand first. If you want to shake make a tender of your hand.

Having concluded ceremonies with the president, Mr. Shannon and I passed down the line of ministers, saluting each in turn, and withdrew from the room.

Nominally, Sacasa is president of the republican Nicaragua. Practically he is as much of a director as is Rodriguez of Costa Rica.

BONUSES!

If our previous sales are any indication we may expect a large crowd at this our third effort. WE WANT YOU TO COME.

To each purchaser we will give a beautiful etching or water color painting, the latter from the artistic brush of Max Reder. Each picture is worth more than the down payment required on a lot by us.

To Those Who Attend But Do Not Buy

We will give 50 of these pictures free.

Besides Offering These Lots at Acre Prices We Will Share Our Profits Still Further With the Purchaser,

By Giving Them Lot No. 80 Free

The purchasers themselves to settle how it is to be awarded. You may well wonder how we can do this, but it is no secret and easily explained. It is simply a matter of business, as we advertised in our Leap Year Sale, and comes under the head of Wholesale and Retail. We have placed prices on these lots to sell them during the sale, and if you buy you are getting lots at wholesale prices. If any lots are left over, which is not likely, you will have to pay what they are worth, or an advance of 25 per cent. to 40 per cent.

CARE OF DIPHTHERIA.

State Board of Health Sends Out a Warning.

Dr. Probst Presents Some Plain Instructions.

The Disease Is Contagious and Patients Should Always Be Isolated.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—Diphtheria is prevailing to an alarming extent throughout Ohio, and as cold weather approaches, the danger of its becoming yet more gravely epidemic increases. In view of this fact, Dr. C. O. Probst, secretary of the state board of health, has prepared for publication in the Monthly Sanitary Record, the official publication of the Ohio state board of health, an exhaustive article upon the treatment of the disease and the precautionary or preventive measures which should be adopted. The current issue of the Sanitary Record containing the article will not appear for some days yet, but the matter is of so great importance that Dr. Probst's paper merits advanced publication in full.

After relating to what an alarming extent diphtheria is now prevailing the paper says: "The fact of greatest importance in connection with the prevention of the disease is that it is spread by contagion and it can only be controlled by strict isolation of the sick and by the disinfection of all things with which they come in contact. In an excellent paper read by Dr. S. W. Abbott, secretary of the state board of health of Massachusetts, before the international congress of hygiene and demography in London, Eng., the following conclusions were laid down relative to the propagation of diphtheria:

"'First—That diphtheria is an eminently contagious disease.

"Second—That it is infectious not only by the exposure of the sick to the well, but also through indirect media such as clothing and other articles that have come in contact with the sick.

"'Third—That overcrowding, faulty ventilation, and filthy condition of tenements favor its spread.

"'Fourth—That the influence of defective plumbing is not proven.

"'Fifth—That its transmission through public and private water supplies is not proven.

"'Sixth—That its propagation is favored by soil moisture, damp cellars, and general dampness of houses.

"'Seventh—That the poison may remain inactive in houses for long periods.

"We yet meet with physicians who maintain that diphtheria is not contagious, though happily their number is few; a greater number may be found who are skeptical about the possibility of conveying the disease in clothing. But the communication of diphtheria in this way has been certainly proved in a number of instances, and health authorities must not ignore, nor permit attending physicians to ignore, this possibility. There is not the slightest doubt but that the spread of diphtheria can be prevented by the strict enforcement of proper measures. Treat the disease just as you would smallpox, and it can be limited to the house where it first appears in a community. This has been demonstrated many times in our state. Instances can be cited where a person having diphtheria has come into the community free from the disease, and where, by promptly quarantining the patient and all those associated with him, the disease has been promptly arrested. But the first case in a community is often not seen by the health authorities until a number have been exposed, and many faci of the disease have been started. Frequently the true nature of the affection is not at once recognized, and it may then be carried into the schools and widely spread. When the disease has become firmly established in a large city it is only with great difficulty that it can be eradicated, and, indeed, we find it present the year round in most large communities. Boards of health should strictly inforve the following measures for preventing the spread of diphtheria:

"Require physicians to report promptly all cases of diphtheria or membranous croup, and when the disease is prevalent, all cases of suspicious sore throat. Immediately on report of a case, visit the house, placard it, and note what provisions can be made for isolating the patient. Adults who are obliged to go out may be permitted to do so, if they at no time come in contact with the patient, or enter the sick room. If you cannot trust that this provision will be followed, allow them to change clothing, disinfect their persons, and leave the house, to remain away until the patient has been discharged or died and the house disinfected. If this precaution cannot be enforced, quarantine all the inmates of the house. Notify the parents that the well children must not be allowed to leave the premises or mingle with other children, and notify the superintendent of schools to prohibit all children in the infected house from coming to school. Require the attending physician to take the same precautions to avoid carrying the disease as you would were smallpox being treated. The great majority of physicians will need no suggestion from the health authorities in regard to this. Do not close the schools unless you are unable to keep within bounds those liable to carry the disease; children are usually safer at school than on the street. If a child is found sick with diphtheria, send all the children in the room home at once, and have the room disinfected before allowing the children to return. Keep diphtheria patients quarantined 40 days in accordance with the rules of the state board of health. This time may be shortened if the attending physician certifies that danger of spreading the disease has passed sooner than this, and the board of health deems it wise to do so. But bear in mind that the germ of diphtheria is often present in the mouth or throat for two weeks or more after the diphtheretic membrane has disappeared; and the disease is frequently spread by permitting the children to go out while they are still in condition to convey contagion.

"The quarantine regulations should not be removed until the house containing the patient has been properly disinfected. The germ of diphtheria may remain active in houses for many months, and it is the duty of the health authorities, not of the attending physician, except, perhaps, morally, to destroy these germs by disinfection, so that other cases of the disease will not occur from contagion left in that house. If a person dies of diphtheria, require the body to be buried as soon after death as possible, and prohibit a public funeral, allowing to be present only the immediate relatives (excluding children), minister, and necessary attendance. The effect of damp, filthy houses in propagating the disease already has been noted, and boards of health should be diligent in eradicating all such disease breeding spots."

The state board of health has sent to all local boards of health a pamphlet treating upon the proper use of disinfectants. In concluding his article, Dr. Probst says: "By enforcing these measures and complying with the rules of the pamphlet on disinfection, health authorities may succeed in preventing the spread of this fatal and to our state most important of all the contagious diseases with which we have to contend."

If the atmospheric pressure is fourteen pounds to the square inch, as usually reckoned, the man of average size is constantly subjected to a pressure of 28,000 pounds.

Dr. Jules Rochard, in a paper read before the French Academy of Medicine, says that prussic acid is among the active principals that pass into the smoke of a cigar undergoing combustion.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST!

Official Test of Rubber-Lined Cotton Fire Hose by the Board of Fire Commissioners of Duluth, Minn., February 25, 1892.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the city of Duluth, Minn., recently received proposals from manufacturers of fire hose to furnish the city with additional hose for fire department service.

Owing to the fact that every agent present upon that occasion, claimed to represent the ONLY brand of hose that could be depended upon to discharge the greatest quantity of water, all other conditions being equal, the commissioners finally resolved to satisfy themselves, and declared in favor of having a public test. Manufacturers who desired to enter the test were requested to furnish 500 feet of hose, with Duluth fire department couplings attached.

Seven competitors entered the field. Each line of hose—500 feet—was attached to a steam fire engine, and subjected to a water pressure of 200 lbs. to the square inch, and discharged water through 1 1-8-inch smooth bore nozzle. Note the result:

Name of Company	Brand of Hose.	Weight of Hose per Section	Effective Pressure at Nozzle.	Gall'ns Dis-ch'rg'd per Minute	Ratio in Gals Dis-ch'rg'd per Hr.	No of gals less per hr. than dis-ch'd by the surprise hose.	Elongation of Hose.

Boston Woven Hose Co	Boston Fire Jacket	52 lbs	70 lbs	3 7	19 620	1920	27 ft

Owing to a high wind prevailing during the test, the distance reached by each stream was not taken into consideration.

The "Surprise" hose not only showed the best results at the nozzle but delivered the greatest quantity of water, and stretched less than any other hose that entered the test.
